MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

LASKER, D.J.

Alec Costerus brings this action pro se against the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, various employees of the Commonwealth (collectively, the "Commonwealth"), two Massachusetts towns, Concord and Marion and assorted town employees alleging that they violated his state and federal "constitutional rights" to store and posses firearms. On December 1, 2000, the Commonwealth moved to dismiss the claims against it. The motion is granted.

I.

On April 10, 1978, Costerus applied for and received a Firearms Identification Card ("FID-Card") from the police station in his then hometown of Marion, Massachusetts. The FID-Card allowed him to possess firearms. In the mid-1980s, Costerus moved out of Massachusetts. Under Massachusetts gun laws (M.G.L.

38

Ch. 140, §§ 121-131P), Costerus was required to notify the authority that had granted him his FID-Card of his move within thirty days. Costerus failed to notify the Marion Police Department. Subsequently, Costerus moved to Concord, Massachusetts, where he lives today.

In 1998, Massachusetts overhauled its gun laws, generally increasing the regulation of gun ownership. Under St. 1998, Ch. 180, § 73, the plaintiff, as a holder of an FID-Card issued before the new law, had one year to comply with the new restrictions.

Costerus' Complaint centers around a purportedly illegal search, seizure and arrest by the Corcord police which occurred on March 21, 1999. On that day, Costerus alleges the following: that he had a verbal fight with his wife; after the fight, he sought police assistance to gather "a few days worth of clothes;" the police instructed him to go to the police station and to wait while defendant, Officer Barry Neal spoke to his wife; while at the station, Costerus saw a pamphlet concerning the new gun laws; Costerus then inquired about what he needed to do to comply with the new law; when Officer Neal returned from the Costerus' home (where Costerus' wife had told him that a non-physical fight had occurred), Officer Neal questioned Costerus about his gun ownership and whether he had a valid FID-Card; Costerus answered, "yes--but it was issued twenty years ago--however, I still think it is valid;" Officer Neal then responded "a lot has changed in twenty years" and arrested Costerus for unlawful possession of a firearm, presumably believing that he did not have a valid FID-Card; Officer Neal ordered another officer to search Costerus' home; the officer then searched and seized several guns from the home without consent or a warrant; while Costerus was being booked, the police required that he give them his social security number or else he would "never get out of here;" and finally, that Costerus was then held overnight in police custody.

On March 22, 1999, Costerus was arraigned in Concord District Court and charged with two counts of illegal possession of a firearm (M.G.L. ch. 269, § 10(h)) and with domestic assault and battery (M.G.L. ch. 265, § 13A). Later, Costerus was charged with not properly securing weapons which were found in his home (M.G.L. ch. 140, § 131L(c)). All of the charges, except for not properly securing his firearms, were subsequently voluntarily dropped by the Commonwealth. This final charge was dropped because the state court had ruled that the Commonwealth's evidence was barred as the "fruit of a poisonous tree" because Officer Neal had failed to give Costerus Miranda warnings when he was arrested.

After the charges against Costerus had been dropped, he filed an application with the Concord Chief of Police, Leonard J. Wetherbee, for a "License to Carry," the license created under the new 1998 law that allowed the holder to own certain types of guns ("large capacity weapons"). Chief Wetherbee denied his request because of Costerus': (1) "failure to comply with a Concord Police Administrative Policy requiring the completion of a firearms safety course when applying for a License to Carry;" and (2) "his recent involvement in domestic and firearms related issues in the Town of Concord." Costerus then appealed the denial to the Massachusetts Superior Court, which reversed it as an abuse of discretion. Chief Wetherbee is currently appealing this decision. Costerus also applied to renew his FID-Card before the expiration of the one-year grace period. After a two-month investigation, which according to Costerus "illegally invaded into the plaintiff's privacy," Chief Wetherbee granted the license.

Based on these events, Costerus, proceeding pro se, has filed a ninety-four page Complaint with over forty Counts mainly asserting that the Commonwealth, Concord and Marion defendants violated his rights to store and possess firearms under the Massachusetts and federal constitutions. The Commonwealth now moves to dismiss all of the Counts against it because: (1) Eleventh Amendment immunity bars some of Costerus' claims; (2) Costerus' Due Process and Second Amendment claims are not actionable; (3) The district attorney defendants, Martha Coakley and Erin Duggan are entitled to absolute prosecutorial immunity; and (4) Costerus' § 1983 claims are invalid because the Commonwealth and its officials are not "persons" subject to the statute.

II.

A. Eleventh Amendment Immunity

The Commonwealth argues that the Eleventh Amendment bars Counts 8, 9, 20, 24, 25, 30, 34 and 35 because these Counts attempt to hold the Commonwealth liable for violations of Massachusetts law in federal court. In support of its position the Commonwealth cites Pennhurst State Sch. and Hosp. v. Holderman, 465 U.S. 98, 121 (1984), in which the Supreme Court held that a suit in federal court against a state alleging violation of its own laws is barred by the Eleventh Amendment.

Costerus responds that Eleventh Amendment immunity does not apply because: (1) he is a citizen of Massachusetts and is suing Massachusetts; (2) he is requesting prospective injunctive relief; and (3) the supplemental jurisdiction statute, 28 U.S.C. § 1367, overrides, or abrogates, the Eleventh Amendment.

The Commonwealth's motion is granted.[1] The reasons given by Costerus for rejecting Eleventh Amendment immunity are without merit. First, although the words of the Eleventh Amendment would appear to allow suits against a state by its own citizens, the Amendment has been consistently interpreted to bar such suits. Hans v. Louisiana, 134 U.S. 1 (1890).

[1] The Commonwealth has moved to dismiss Counts 24, 25, and 34 based on the Pennhurst rule. Counts 25 and 34 make claims exclusively under federal law. Count 24 makes claims under both Massachusetts and federal law. The Commonwealth's Pennhurst argument has been understood as requesting only the dismissal of claims brought under Massachusetts law and accordingly, Counts 25, 34 (federal claims) and those portions of Count 24 which are based exclusively on federal law are not dismissed based on Pennhurst.

Second, the fact that Costerus seeks to remedy purported violations of Massachusetts law through prospective injunctive relief is irrelevant to Eleventh Amendment analysis. As the Supreme Court explained in Pennhurst, 465 U.S. at 106: "a federal court's grant of relief against state officials on the basis of state law, whether prospective or retroactive ... conflicts directly with the principles of federalism that underlie the Eleventh Amendment."

Third, Costerus' argument that Congress abrogated the States' Eleventh Amendment immunity in passing the supplemental jurisdiction statute (28 U.S.C. § 1367) is without merit. In order for Congress to have abrogated the States' Eleventh Amendment immunity through the passage of the supplemental jurisdiction statute, it would have had to have passed the statute both: (1) pursuant § 5 of the Fourteenth Amendment;[2] and (2) with an "unequivocal" intent to abrogate the States' Eleventh Amendment immunity.[3] Neither factor is even arguably present here. See Freeman v. Oakland Unified Sch. Dist., 179 F.3d 846

[2] Seminole Tribe of Florida v. Florida, 517 U.S. 44 (1996) and its progeny have held that claims of Congressional abrogation of Eleventh Amendment immunity could only be made under § 5 of the Fourteenth Amendment.

[3] Green v. Mansour, 474 U.S. 64, 68 (1985).

(9th Cir. 1999) (holding that in enacting 28 U.S.C. § 1367 Congress did not abrogate the States' Eleventh Amendment immunity).

B. Costerus' Second Amendment Claims

The Commonwealth moves to dismiss Counts 6, 7, 9, 11, 12, 16, 17, and 22 to the extent that they rely on the Second Amendment because the Amendment: (1) is inapplicable to the States; and (2) does not create an individual right. Presser v. Illinois, 116 U.S. 252, 265 (1886); United States v. Miller, 307 U.S. 174, 178 (1939).

Costerus responds that a passing reference made in Justice Harlan's dissent in Poe v. Ullman, 367 U.S. 497, 543 (1961), to the "right to bear arms" and quoted in two majority opinions not dealing with the Second Amendment,[4] establishes such a right.

The Commonwealth's motion is granted. Presser and Miller control. Justice Harlan's reference in his dissent in Poe, to "the right to bear arms" does not purport to be an adjudication that such a right exists and the quotation of his dissent in later cases appears solely in a discussion of the nature of Due Process.

[4] Planned Parenthood of Southeastern Pa. v. Casey, 505 U.S. 833, 848 (1992); Moore v. City of East Cleveland, 431 U.S. 494, 502 (1976).

Moreover, even if the Second Amendment did confer an individual right (enforceable against a State), Costerus has not demonstrated how the Commonwealth's statutory scheme abridged the right. The Commonwealth's gun control statute allows law-abiding persons to possess firearms with certain restrictions intended solely to insure the safety of its citizens. Such a statute, which strikes a reasoned balance between the interests of gun owners and the interests of citizens to be free from the potential dangers of guns does not offend, even a quite expansive and personal conception, of the Second Amendment. Accordingly, Counts 6, 7, 9 and 16 are dismissed in their entirety and Counts 11, 12, 18, and 22 are dismissed to the extent that they make Second Amendment claims.

C. Costerus' Due Process Claims

In Counts 11, 14, 15, 16, 17, 19, 22 and 25 Costerus asserts that the Commonwealth's gun statute violates Due Process because it grants the Chiefs of Police discretion to: (1) deny Costerus a "license to carry;" (2) refuse to renew his FID-Card; and (3) seize his guns. Moreover, Costerus argues that "because M.G.L. Ch. 140, § 131L is a new statute with no mens rea requirement, it violates [Costerus'] Fifth Amendment due process rights [because he can be] subject to prosecution without proof of knowledge that he was violating the statute." Complaint, ¶ 178.

The Commonwealth moves to dismiss. It argues that: (1) the statute complies with Due Process because adequate post-deprivation remedies are available; and (2) Costerus cannot assert Due Process claims based on denials of gun licenses because neither a "property" nor "liberty" interest is implicated. The Commonwealth also denies that its gun statute imposes criminal liability for weapons storage without requiring mens rea, a guilty state of mind.

The Commonwealth's motion is granted. Costerus' Due Process claims based on the Commonwealth's initial denial of a gun license fail because Massachusetts provides an adequate post-deprivation remedy. Under M.G.L. ch. 140, § 129B, Costerus was entitled to and received judicial review of the initial gun license denial. The Supreme Court has held that the availability of post-deprivation judicial review is a particularly important factor in determining whether Due Process has been accorded. Zinermon v. Burch, 494 U.S. 113 (1990). Because judicial review was readily available to Costerus, his Due Process claims are not actionable.

Many of these claims also fail because neither a "property" nor a "liberty" interest is implicated by the Commonwealth's initial denial of a "License to Carry." Costerus did not have a "legitimate claim of entitlement" to a "License to Carry." Chief of Police of Shelburne v. Moyer, 16 Mass.App.Ct.

543, 547, 453 N.E.2d 461 (1983)(plaintiff did not have a liberty or property interest in a gun license); see, Board of Regents v. Roth, 408 U.S. 564 (1972) (describing the stringent standard for making a federal Due Process claim based on an "entitlement"). An applicant seeking "License to Carry" has neither a "property" nor "liberty" interest, but is seeking a privilege, which can be extended (or refused) by the Commonwealth without Due Process implications.[5] See Medina v. Rudman, 545 F.2d 244, 250-51 (1st Cir. 1976) (holding that a potential greyhound license applicant under New Hampshire law had neither a liberty or property interest in her application); Luk v. Commonwealth, 421 Mass. 415, 658 N.E.2d 664, 669 (1995) (holding that a driver's license is neither a contract nor property right); Town of Milton v. Commonwealth, 416 Mass. 471, 623 N.E.2d 482, 484 (1993) (holding that under Massachusetts law for a statute to create a contract there must be clear legislative intent to do so); and Mosby v. McAteer, No. 99-6504, 2001 WL 91407 (R.I. Super. Jan. 10, 2001) (holding that an applicant for a gun license under Rhode Island's parallel gun licensing statute did not have either a "liberty" or "property" interest in their application).

Nor does the Commonwealth's criminal firearms storage statute (M.G.L. 140, § 131L) violate Due Process. Contrary to Costerus' argument, the courts have held that violation of a parallel statute (M.G.L. ch. 269, § 10(a)) requires a guilty state of mind. Commonwealth v. Sampson, 383 Mass. 750, 422 N.E.2d 450, 456 (1981) and Commonwealth v. Jackson, 369 Mass. 904, 344 N.E.2d 166, 173 (1976), both held that a guilty state of mind is required in order to convict a person of the closely analogous crime of unlawful possession of a firearm and there is no reason to believe that the Supreme Judicial Court would rule any differently with respect to the firearms storage statute then it did when presented with the firearms possession statute.

D. Costerus' Claims Against the District Attorney Defendants

In Counts 6, 8, 9, 11 and 33, Costerus asserts claims against District Attorney Martha Coakley and Assistant District Attorney Erin Duggan for their roles in prosecuting him for the events of March 21, 1999. The Commonwealth moves to dismiss on the grounds of prosecutorial immunity. The Commonwealth's motion is granted. Coakley and Duggan are entitled to absolute immunity from a suit for monetary damages for actions taken in their official capacity as advocates of the state. Buckley v.

Fitzsimmons, 509 U.S. 259, 269 (1993). Count 33 is dismissed.[6]

E. Costerus' 42 U.S.C. § 1983 Claims Against the Commonwealth

In Counts 24, 34 and 35, Costerus seeks to hold the Commonwealth liable under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for the actions of its officers undertaken in their official capacities which purportedly violated federal law. The Commonwealth moves to dismiss, arguing that neither it nor its officers are "persons" subject to § 1983, citing Will v. Michigan Dep't of State Police, 491 U.S. 58 (1989), in support of its position. The Commonwealth's motion is granted to the extent that it seeks to prevent Costerus from suing the Commonwealth or its officials for money damages. In Will, 491 U.S. at 70 n.10, the Supreme Court noted that while generally a state official is not a "person" subject to suit under § 1983, a state official is considered a "person" under § 1983 when she is sued in her official capacity for prospective injunctive relief. Thus, to the extent that Costerus seeks prospective injunctive relief under § 1983 against officials of the Commonwealth his claims are not barred by Will.

[6] Counts 6, 8, 9 and 11 are already dismissed, as described above, by either the Eleventh Amendment or because they do not state a federal claim. Count 33 is dismissed against the District Attorney defendants because it asserts a claim exclusively for money damages which is contrary to Buckley's absolute immunity rule. Costerus claims that he may sue the district attorney defendants for prospective injunctive relief. Costerus is correct, however, as his Complaint is currently written, it does not do so.

However, this point is academic. These Counts still fail to state a claim because, as described above, Costerus has not alleged an actionable violation of federal law.

III.

From Costerus' ninety-four page Complaint and other filings it is clear that he is an intelligent and tenacious person who is understandably troubled by his interactions with the Concord Police Department over his possession of firearms. However, the fact that Costerus appears to have stated a claim against Concord does not give him an unfettered license to file a multiplicity of patently frivolous claims against either the Commonwealth or the Town of Marion. Fed.R.Civ.P. 11 prohibits such conduct even by a party appearing pro se. In the future, Costerus should exercise more care in separating his tenable legal arguments from those which are unsupportable. The Commonwealth's motion to dismiss is granted. Costerus' state law claims and his federal claims which are barred exclusively by Zinermon are dismissed without prejudice. Costerus' other federal claims are dismissed with prejudice.

It is so ordered.

appeal of one of his post-conviction motions. The respondent herein answers the number paragraphs detailing the petitioner's direct appeal:

(a). Appeals Court.

(b). The Appeals Court held: The judgments entered on counts one and three of indictment no. 44725 are reversed, and the verdicts are set aside on those counts. The case is remanded to the Superior Court for entry of findings of guilty of breaking and entering in the daytime with the intent to commit a felony on counts one and three of indictment no. 44725 and for resentencing on those counts. The remaining judgments are affirmed.

(c). March 26, 1996; Commonwealth v. Bland, 40 Mass. App. Ct. 1110, 662 N.E.2d 1063 (1996).

(d). The petitioner raised the following issues on direct appeal: 1) error in denial of motion for required finding of not guilty where evidence was insufficient; 2) error in denial of motion to suppress; 3) error in denial of motion to sever an indictment; 4) prejudice resulting from loss of evidence; 5) prosecutorial misconduct for loss of evidence; and 6) ineffective assistance of counsel for failure to request a re-hearing on motion to suppress and failure to file motion to dismiss based on lost evidence.

(e)(1). Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court ("SJC").

(e)(2). Application for Leave to Obtain Further Appellate Review ("ALOFAR") denied.

(e)(3). June 21, 1996; Commonwealth v. Bland, 423 Mass. App. Ct. 1101, 667 N.E.2d 1158 (1996).

(e)(4). Of the petitioner's six issues presented to the Appeals Court, the petitioner raised only one issue, error in denial of motion to suppress, to the Supreme Judicial Court in his ALOFAR.

(f). No answer is necessary because the petitioner has not designated a response in paragraph 9(f).

10. The respondent admits the allegation in paragraph 10. Further answering, the respondent states that the petitioner had two post-conviction motions in the trial court. The petitioner's motion to revise and revoke his sentence history is detailed in paragraph 11(a)(1)-(6), and his motion for new trial history may be found in paragraphs 11(b)(1)-(6). The petitioner did appeal the denial of each of these motions, and the respondent has also offered the appellate procedural history of each motion in paragraph 11(c).

11(a)(1)-(6). The respondent admits in part the allegations in paragraphs 11(a)(1)-(6). Further answering the respondent states that the petitioner did not receive an evidentiary hearing on his motion to revise and revoke.

11(b)(1)-(6). No answer is necessary because the petitioner has not designated a response in paragraphs 11(b)(1)-(6). However, the respondent offers the following procedural history of the petitioner's motion for post-conviction relief pursuant to Mass. R. Crim. P. 30(b):

(1). Barnstable County Superior Court.

(2). Motion for Post Conviction Relief pursuant to Mass. R. Crim. P. 30(b).

(3). The petitioner asserted the following claims in an affidavit: 1) failure to preserve evidence, police dispatch tape; and 2) ineffective assistance of counsel for failure to object to the Commonwealth's amendment of indictment.

(4). The petitioner did not receive a hearing.

(5). Motion was denied by the trial court in a Memorandum and Order.

(6). Denied on July 22, 1998.

11(c). The respondent admits in part the allegations in paragraphs 11(c). Further answering, the respondent states that the petitioner appealed each of his post-conviction motions. The respondent offers the following appellate procedural history as to each motion:

(1). On February 29, 2000, the Appeals Court affirmed the denial of his motion to revise and revoke sentence in Commonwealth v. Bland, 48 Mass. App. Ct. 666, 724 N.E.2d 723 (2000). To the Appeals Court, the petitioner asserted that his the judge abused his discretion in the original sentencing and in the denial of the motion to revise and revoke because the judge based those decisions upon invalid and unconstitutional factors. The petitioner sought further appellate review with the SJC. On April 27, 2000, the SJC denied the petitioner's ALOFAR in Commonwealth v. Bland, 431 Mass. 1105, 733 N.E.2d 125 (2000). The petitioner raised the same claim to the SJC as he did to the Appeals Court.

(2). On June 10, 1999, the Appeals Court affirmed the denial of his post-conviction motion under Rule 30 in a summary disposition, Commonwealth v. Bland, 47 Mass. App. Ct. 1103, 711 N.E.2d 619 (1999). The petitioner raised the following issues to the Appeals Court: 1) error in failure to instruct on lesser included offenses; 2) prejudice resulting from loss of evidence; and 3) ineffective assistance of counsel for failure to request lesser included offense instruction. The petitioner sought further appellate review with the SJC. On October 25, 1999, the SJC denied the petitioner's ALOFAR in Commonwealth v. Bland, 720 N.E.2d 468 (1999). The petitioner raised the following issues in his ALOFAR: 1) whether his lost evidence claim was waived for the purpose of further appellate review; and 2) whether the trial court erred in subsuming the lesser included offense into another indictment.

12A. The respondent denies factually and legally the allegations in paragraph 12A.

12B-D. No answer is necessary because the petitioner has not designated a response in paragraphs 12B-D.

13. No answer is required because the petitioner has not specified a response in paragraph 13.

14. The respondent has insufficient information to answer the allegation in paragraph 14.

15. The respondent admits the allegations in paragraph 15.

16. The respondent admits the allegation in paragraph 16.

17. The respondent has insufficient information to answer the allegations in paragraph 17.

Further answering, and in response to Rule 5 of the rules following 28 U.S.C. §2254, the respondent states:

Enclosed with this Answer is the Respondent's Supplemental Appendix (Volume I: Exhibits 1-14; Volume II: Exhibits 15-22) which contain the following exhibits:

22. Supreme Judicial Court's Notice of Denial of F.A.R. Application in Commonwealth v. Bland, SJC FAR-11235.

FIRST DEFENSE

The petitioner's convictions rest on adequate and independent state law grounds, and are thus not cognizable in habeas review. See Coleman v. Thompson, 501 U.S. 722 (1991); Wainwright v. Sykes, 433 U.S. 72 (1977); Ortiz v. DuBois, 19 F.3d 708 (1st Cir. 1994), cert. denied, 513 U.S. 1085 (1995).

SECOND DEFENSE

The habeas petition should be denied where a new rule of constitutional law may not be announced or applied retroactively on collateral review. See Teague v. Lane, 489 U.S. 288 (1989).

THIRD DEFENSE

The habeas petition should be denied where the state court's adjudication of the petitioner's claims on the merits did not result in a decision that was contrary to, or involve an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal Law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States. See U.S.C. § 2254(d)(1); Williams v. Taylor, 529 U.S. 362 (2000).

FOURTH DEFENSE

The habeas petition should be denied where the state court's adjudication of the petitioner's claims on the merits did not result in a decision that was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the state court proceedings. See U.S.C. § 2254 (e)(2). The petitioner cannot rebut the presumption of correctness of the state court's factual findings by "clear and convincing" evidence. See U.S.C. § 2254(e)(2).

The respondent hereby reserves the right to amend or supplement this Answer in the future should that need arise.

Respectfully submitted,

FOR THE DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

NANCY K. GARRITY, JOANNE CLARKE, DORIS A. FARRELL, and ARTHUR GARRITY, Plaintiffs,

v.

JOHN HANCOCK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,

Defendant.

AMENDED COMPLAINT AND DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

00-cv-12143-RWZ

PARTIES

1. Plaintiff, Nancy K. Garrity ("Ms. Garrity"), is an individual residing at 178 Winter Street, Hanover, Plymouth County, Massachusetts. Ms. Garrity is a former employee of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company, and, at the time of her discharge was a participant eligible to receive severance benefits under a severance pay plan sponsored by the Company (the "Severance Plan").

2. Plaintiff, Joanne Clarke ("Ms. Clarke"), is an individual residing at 11 Dorman Street, Hudson, Middlesex County, Massachusetts. Ms. Clarke is a former employee of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company, and, at the time of her discharge was a participant eligible to receive severance benefits under a severance pay plan sponsored by the Company.

Exhibit A

3. Plaintiff, Arthur Garrity ("Mr. Garrity"),is an individual residing at 178 Winter Street, Hanover, Plymouth County, Massachusetts. He is the husband of Ms. Garrity.

4. Defendant, John Hancock Life Insurance Company f/k/a John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company ("John Hancock"), is a Massachusetts corporation, with a principal place of business at John Hancock Place, Boston, Suffolk County, Massachusetts. Upon information and belief the Severance Plan is an employee welfare benefit plan within the meaning of §3(1) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act ("ERISA"), 29 U.S.C. §1002 and John Hancock is the plan sponsor of the Severance Plan within the meaning of §3(10)(B) of ERISA, 29 U.S.C. §1002.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

5. The Court has: (i) exclusive jurisdiction over the claims of Ms. Garrity, and Ms. Clarke to obtain appropriate equitable relief, pursuant to §502(e)(1) of ERISA, 29 U.S.C. §1132(e)(1); (ii) concurrent jurisdiction of the claims of Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke to recover the severance benefits they are entitled to, pursuant to §502(e)(1) of ERISA, 29 U.S.C. §1132(e)(1); and (iii) pendant jurisdiction of the remaining claims brought against John Hancock pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1367(a).

6. Venue is proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1391 because a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claims brought against John Hancock occurred in this district; and pursuant to §502(e)(2) of ERISA, 29 U.S.C. §1132(e)(2) because John Hancock resides and may be found in Massachusetts.

FACTS

7. Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke are former employees of the Defendant John Hancock. Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke were employed as case managers in the Defendant's Long Term Care Division. Prior to being discharged, Ms. Garrity had worked for John Hancock for approximately thirteen years and Ms. Clark for over two years.

8. Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke were conscientious employees and each was performing her job satisfactorily. Neither had received any oral or written warnings concerning their performance. In fact, Ms. Garrity was in line to receive a promotion at the time of her termination.

9. As case managers, Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke were required to perform some data entry functions and each had their own computer and work station to perform these functions.

10. In approximately late 1998 or early 1999 John Hancock installed a new computer network which, for the first time, enabled its employees to log onto the internet through their personal computers and correspond through electronic mail ("e-mail") not only with their co-workers at John Hancock, but also individuals outside the Company.

11. Ms. Garrity attended an in-house training program designed to instruct her on the use of e-mail and the internet. This training program was developed by John Hancock and taught by its employees on-site at the John Hancock Education Center.

12. During the course of this seminar, John Hancock's trainers showed Ms. Garrity, among other things, how to use the Company's e-mail system to send and receive personal e-mail messages and how to create separate folders for their personal e-mail correspondence.

13. Ms. Garrity also received instruction during the training seminar how to delete e-mail from her "in box" once she had read it, and how to then delete any record of the e-mail she had received from her delete files.

14. Ms. Clarke did not attend the same training seminars as Ms. Garrity, but received similar instruction how to use e-mail and the internet on an ad hoc basis from her fellow employees, who had attended such instructional seminars.

15. At no time, either during the course of their training, or in materials they received in conjunction with this seminar, did John Hancock indicate that there were any restrictions placed on employees ability either to send and receive personal messages through John Hancock's e-mail system.

16. John Hancock also never informed the Ms. Garrity or Ms. Clarke, either during its instructional seminars or otherwise, that its computer system had the ability to surreptitiously intercept, record and archive the personal e-mail messages they sent and received, or that John Hancock could recover this personal correspondence even after it had been deleted.

17. John Hancock also failed to take reasonable or adequate steps to inform the Ms. Garrity or Ms. Clarke that it reserved the right to review their personal e-mail correspondence and to discipline them based on the content of these personal communications.

18. In fact, through its policies and procedures, John Hancock emphasized the confidentiality of each employee's e-mail communications. Thus, to gain access to their e-mail account each employee was required to enter a secret password, chosen by the employee. Employees were repeatedly instructed never to reveal their passwords, even to their own supervisors. To further enhance security, John Hancock required employees to periodically change the passwords they had chosen.

19. Believing that any communications they sent or received through their personal e-mail accounts would remain private and confidential, the Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke used their e-mail to correspond with friends, family and co-workers - occasionally on topics of an extremely private and potentially embarrassing nature.

20. The Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke were not the only individuals to use e-mail for non-business communications and, upon information and belief, the use of e-mail for personal correspondence by John Hancock's employees is widespread and endemic.

21. On or about June 30, 1999 John Hancock apparently received a complaint from an employee who had mistakenly been receiving e-mails from Ms. Garrity. Rather than advising Ms. Garrity of the mistake and requesting her to stop sending e-mails to this individual, John Hancock surreptitiously launched a full scale investigation of Ms. Garrity's personal e-mail account.

22. Participating in this investigation on behalf of John Hancock were two employees from its Work Force Diversity Unit, computer specialists (John Hancock's so-called "E-Mail Team"), the Human Resources Administrator responsible for Ms. Garrity's Division, representatives of John Hancock's legal department, and Ms. Gail Schaeffer ("Ms. Schaeffer"), the Vice President of Ms. Garrity's department, among others.

23. In conjunction with this investigation, upon information and belief, representatives of John Hancock read not only messages Ms. Garrity had sent or forwarded to others but also messages that had been sent to her by friends and family, including messages she had attempted to delete, but which had been surreptitiously intercepted, recorded and archived by John Hancock.

24. Mr. Garrity was one of the individuals who used e-mail to send private and personal messages to his wife. At the time he sent these messages, Mr. Garrity believed that any communications directed to his wife's e-mail address would remain private. He was unaware that John Hancock was surreptitiously intercepting, recording and archiving every incoming message received by its employees, that it might subsequently review these messages or that his wife could be subject to discipline because of something he sent to her private e-mail address.

25. After completing its exhaustive review of Ms. Garrity's e-mail account, John Hancock's representatives expanded the scope of their investigation to include the e-mail accounts of any employee whom Ms. Garrity had sent a message that John Hancock deemed to be inappropriate, including the e-mail account of Ms. Clarke.

26. On July 8, 1999 Ms. Garrity was advised by the head of her department, Ms. Shaeffer, and representatives of the Human Resources Department that her employment was being terminated, effective immediately. She was told that the grounds for their dismissal was that they had violated John Hancock's e-mail policy by sending and receiving e-mails that the Company deemed obscene. At the time of her termination Ms. Garrity was unaware that she was allegedly violating John Hancock's e-mail policy and had never received any warnings about her use of e-mail.

27. On July 9, 1999, Ms. Clarke was advised by Ms. Shaeffer and a representative from the Human Resources Department that her employment was being terminated, effective immediately. She was told that the grounds for her dismissal was that she had violated John Hancock's e-mail policy by sending e-mails that the Company deemed obscene. At the time of her termination Ms. Clarke was unaware that she was allegedly violating John Hancock's e-mail policy and had not received any warnings about her use of e-mail.

COUNT I - Invasion of Privacy

28. The Plaintiffs repeat the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 27 and, by this reference, incorporate them herein.

29. As a result of the training they received from John Hancock, and the fact that their e-mail accounts were protected by a password each had selected, the Plaintiffs had a reasonable expectation that the personal communications they sent and received through John Hancock's e-mail system would remain private.

30. Notwithstanding the Plaintiffs' reasonable expectation that their personal e-mail correspondence would remain private, John Hancock, through its authorized agents and employees, unreasonably, substantially and seriously interfered with the Plaintiffs' privacy, in violation of G.L.c. 214 §1B of the Massachusetts General Laws, by, inter alia.: (i) surreptitiously intercepting, recording and archiving the Plaintiffs' e-mail correspondence; (ii) reading and reviewing the Plaintiffs' personal e-mail; and, (iii) publishing and disseminating the Plaintiffs' personal e-mail not only among numerous employees at John Hancock, but to individuals who are not John Hancock employees.

COUNT II - Unlawful Interception of Wire Communications

31. The Plaintiffs repeat the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 27 and, by this reference, incorporate them herein.

32. The personal e-mail communications sent to and received from the Plaintiffs' friends, family and co-workers constitute "wire communications" within the meaning of G.L.c. 272 §99(B)(1) of the Massachusetts General Laws.

33. John Hancock's computer system was a device or apparatus capable of surreptitiously intercepting, recording and archiving the Plaintiff's "wire communications" and constitutes an "intercepting device" within the meaning of G.L.c. 272 §99(B)(3) of the Massachusetts General Laws.

34. John Hancock willfully committed, attempted to commit or procured another person to commit an interception of the Plaintiffs' e-mail communications by means of an intercepting device, in violation of G.L.c. 272 §99(C)(1) of the Massachusetts General Laws.

35. John Hancock willfully disclosed or attempted to disclose to another person the contents of the Plaintiffs' e-mail communications, knowing that such information was obtained through an illegal interception, in violation of G.L.c. 272 §99(C)(3) of the Massachusetts General Laws.

36. As a result of John Hancock's wrongful conduct the Plaintiffs have been damaged.

37. The Plaintiffs have a private right of action against John Hancock for its willful interception and willful disclosure of their private e-mail communications and the damages arising from such conduct pursuant to G.L.c. 272 §99(Q).

COUNT III - Wrongful Discharge in Violation of Public Policy

38. The Plaintiffs repeat the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 27 and, by this reference, incorporate them herein.

39. John Hancock's termination of the Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke was committed in violation of public policy of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which guarantees to every citizen the right to be free from unreasonable, substantial or serious interference with their privacy pursuant to G.L.c. 214 §1B and G.L.c. 272 §99 of the Massachusetts General Laws.

40. Discharging Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke based solely on the contents of their private communications with friends, family and co-workers constitutes a wrongful termination of their employment in violation of public policy.

41. As a result of John Hancock's wrongful conduct, the Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke have been damaged.

COUNT IV - Wrongful Discharge in Violation to Deprive Plaintiffs Benefits Provided by the Severance Plan (ERISA §510)

42. The Plaintiffs repeat the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 29 and, by this reference, incorporate them herein.

43. Upon information and belief, in addition to Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke, John Hancock has terminated in excess of thirty other employees for alleged violations of John Hancock's e-mail policy.

44. Upon information and belief, at the time John Hancock terminated the Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke and the other thirty-plus employees fired for allegedly inappropriate use of e-mail, it had decided to implement, but not yet announced, a reduction in force.

45. Under the terms of the Severance Plan, salaried employees are eligible for severance benefits based on their salary and length of service if they are terminated as part of a reduction in force. Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke, and, upon information and belief, most, if not all, of the other employees terminated for alleged violations of John Hancock's e-mail policy would have been eligible for severance benefits if their employment had been terminated due to a reduction in force.

46. Shortly after terminating Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke, and in excess of thirty other employees, for alleged violations of its e-mail policy, John Hancock laid off numerous employees as part of a company-wide reduction in force.

47. Upon information and belief John Hancock terminated Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke, and in excess of thirty other employees, for alleged violations of its e-mail policy to interfere with their attainment of rights to which they would have become entitled to under the Severance Plan in the event of a layoff, including severance benefits they would have been entitled to receive, in violation of §510 of ERISA, 29 U.S.C. §1140.

48. Upon information and belief, John Hancock wrongfully terminated Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke, and in excess of thirty other employees, solely to reduce the cost of its anticipated reduction in force.

COUNT V - Defamation

49. The Plaintiffs repeat the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 27 and, by this reference, incorporate them herein.

50. John Hancock defamed and slandered Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke by falsely accusing them of subscribing to pornographic sites on the internet and using their e-mail accounts to send and receive lewd, obscene and pornographic materials.

51. Upon information and belief, John Hancock's false and defamatory statements were published and disseminated both among its employees and to other individuals.

52. As a result of John Hancock's false and defamatory statements the Ms. Garrity and Ms. Clarke have been damaged.

WHEREFORE, the Plaintiffs request that this Court:

(a) Enter judgment on their behalf as to Counts I through V;

(b) Award them compensatory damages in an amount to be determined at trial with respect to Counts I through V;

(c) Award them punitive damages in an amount to be determined at trial with respect to Counts I through V;

(d) Award them reasonable attorneys' fees, with respect to Count II, pursuant to G.L.c. 272 §99(Q) and with respect to Count IV, pursuant to §502(g) of ERISA, 29 U.S.C. §1132(g)(1);

(e) Award them other appropriate equitable relief, with respect to Count IV, pursuant to §502(a)(3)(B) of ERISA, 29 U.S.C. §1132(a)(3)(B);

(f) Award such other relief as the Court shall deem just and reasonable.

DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

LAVASTORM, INC.

Plaintiff,

v.

180 COMMERCE, INC.,

Defendant.

Civil Action No.

01-10421 RWZ

COMPLAINT

Introduction

1. This is an action to recover $506,250.00 in payments owed under a written Agreement entered into between plaintiff Lavastorm, Inc. ("Lavastorm") and defendant 180Commerce, Inc. ("180Commerce") for consulting services in connection with the design of a highly sophisticated Internet-based on-line return management system, and for multiple damages, costs and attorneys' fees pursuant to Mass. G.L. ch. 93A, as a result of the unfair and deceptive acts and practices engaged in by 180Commerce in its scheme to reap the benefit of Lavastorm's performance under this Agreement without paying for it.

Parties

2. Plaintiff Lavastorm is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware with a principal place of business in Waltham, Massachusetts. Lavastorm is engaged in the business of designing and implementing highly sophisticated intranet and Internet solutions for the business community.

3. Defendant 180Commerce is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Georgia with a principal place of business in Atlanta, Georgia. 180Commerce is a start-up company that intends to develop an Internet based software system to streamline the process of returning goods and maximize the return manufacturers receive from their goods.

Jurisdiction and Venue

4. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a)(1). This Court has personal jurisdiction over 180Commerce under the provisions of G.L. c. 223A, § 3, the Massachusetts long-arm statute, as 180Commerce transacts business in the Commonwealth, and has caused tortious injury in the Commonwealth by means of acts or omissions both in and outside of the Commonwealth.

5. Venue is proper in this District pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1391(a) and (c).

Facts

6. On or about March 30, 2000, Lavastorm entered into a written Agreement with 180Commerce in which Lavastorm and 180Commerce agreed that, in exchange for the payment of a total sum of $675,000, Lavastorm would provide 180Commerce consulting and design services with respect to a contemplated Internet based on-line returns management system that 180Commerce hoped to offer manufacturers and retail operations. The services that Lavastorm contracted to provide 180Commerce were denominated under the Agreement the "Phase I Definition and Design" services and were to include creation of a series of four reports (functional specifications, product definition, system definition, and product plan) and a sales demonstration tool for 180Commerce to showcase at an upcoming trade show and on its World Wide Web site. Upon the completion of these Phase I services, it was contemplated that the parties would enter into an Agreement for the provision of the "Phase II Build and Deliver" services, which were to include providing needed database software, routing structure, and hardware for the implementation of the contemplated returns management system.

7. The Agreement required payment by 180Commerce on the following payment schedule: (a) $168,750 due upon execution of the Agreement; (b) $168,750 due upon delivery of a sales demonstration tool for use at the QEII Trade Show; and (c) the balance of $337,250 due upon completion of the Phase I Design Services or upon receipt of 180Commerce's first round of financing, whichever event occurred later.

8. 180Commerce paid the $168,750 due upon execution of the Agreement and work under the Agreement commenced. Lavastorm completed the sales demonstration tool for the QEII Trade Show prior to the May 2000 deadline established by the Agreement, and 180Commerce used the sales demonstration tool at the Trade Show and also linked the demonstration tool to its World Wide Web site. 180Commerce reported positive feedback from prospective customers. Upon completion of the QEII sales demonstration tool, Lavastorm demanded payment of the next $168,750, then due and owing under the Agreement, but 180Commerce failed to pay this or any amount under the Agreement.

9. In addition to providing the sales demonstration tool, Lavastorm provided additional features to 180 Commerce's corporate World Wide Web site in order to make the site more attractive to investors and customers. Lavastorm licensed graphics for use on the 180Commerce site, which 180Commerce continued to use on its corporate site, without payment, until March 2001.

10. On or about June 23, 2000, Lavastorm completed all Phase I Design Services. At this point, 180Commerce had not yet paid the second milestone payment, which was due and owing upon completion of the sales demonstration tool, and Lavastorm indicated that it intended to withhold the four reports that were the balance of the Phase I deliverables until the second milestone payment had been made. The sales demonstration tool remained available to 180Commerce, which continued to show it to prospective customers and investors. At the completion of Phase I Design Services, 180Commerce asked Lavastorm to contract for and commence Phase II "design and build" services, but Lavastorm declined to do so until it had been paid all amounts then due and owing.

11. 180Commerce indicated to Lavastorm that it did not have the money to pay amounts then due and owing under the Agreement. 180Commerce told Lavastorm that it needed the Phase I documentation -- the four reports Lavastorm had prepared that described inter alia functional specifications, user experience, competition outlook, performance requirements, logical and physcial architectures, and third party requirements -- to show prospective investors. 180Commerce represented that it believed that it would receive financing -- and Lavastorm would be paid -- if it were able to show investors this valuable Phase I documentation.

12. Based upon these representations, Lavastorm released the Phase I documentation to 180Commerce. Upon information and belief, 180Commerce used the Phase I documentation in seeking its first round of venture capital financing. Upon information and belief, 180Commerce's use of the Phase I documentation was instrumental to its receipt of its first-round financing and, without the Phase I deliverables, including the four reports and the sales demonstration tool -- none of which it had paid for -- 180Commerce would not have received its first-round financing.

13. Up to and through the time Lavastorm released the four reports that constituted the balance of the Phase I deliverables, despite 180Commerce's failure to pay amounts due and owing, 180Commerce raised no complaints about Lavastorm's performance under the Agreement or about the quality or completeness of Lavastorm's work under the contract. 180Commerce only lodged complaints about Lavastorm's performance after Lavastorm more forcefully expressed its concerns about 180Commerce's failure to make required payments.

14. On or about February 20, 2001, 180Commerce announced that it had closed its first round of financing and was preparing to "build out" its technology. Lavastorm demanded that 180Commerce pay the $337,500 that came due under the Agreement upon receipt of financing, as well as the $168,750 that had come due in May 2000, upon delivery of the demonstration sales tool. 180Commerce did not pay any of the balance due under the Agreement.

COUNT I

(Breach of Contract)

15. Lavastorm repeats and realleges the allegations set forth in paragraphs 1 through 14 of the Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

16. The Agreement required 180 Commerce to pay Lavastorm $168,750 upon completion of the QEII sales demonstration tool and $337,500 upon completion of Phase I or after 180 Commerce's second round of financing, whichever came later. The QEII sales demonstration tool was completed in May 2000, Phase I was completed in June 2000, and 180Commerce completed a second round of financing in or around February 2001. Nevertheless, 180Commerce has failed and refused to pay the remaining balance of $506,250.

16. 180Commerce has breached the Agreement by failing to make these payments.

17. As a direct consequence of this breach, Lavastorm is entitled to money damages in the amount of $506,250, plus interest running from the date of breach.

COUNT II

(Unjust Enrichment)

18. Lavastorm repeats and realleges the allegations set forth in paragraphs 1 through 17 of the Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

19. 180Commerce has benefited from Lavastorm's time, attention, efforts, and expertise and has been provided with a design solution for its Internet business without compensating Lavastorm fully therefor.

20. As a result 180Commerce has been unfairly enriched in an amount exceeding $506,250, which amount in fairness and good conscience is owed to Lavastorm.

COUNT III

(Unfair and Deceptive Acts and Practices in Violation of Mass. G.L. ch. 93A)

21. Lavastorm repeats and realleges the allegations set forth in paragraphs 1 through 20 of the Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

22. The aforesaid acts of 180Commerce constitute unfair and deceptive trade acts or practices within the meaning of G.L. c. 93A, § 2.

23. The aforesaid acts of 180Commerce were committed intentionally and willfully, entitling plaintiffs to treble their damages pursuant to G.L. c. 93A, § 2 and 11.

24. The aforesaid unfair and deceptive acts and practices occurred primarily and substantially within the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

WHEREFORE, Lavastorm request that this Court:

1. Enter judgment in Lavastorm's favor in an amount of $560,250, plus prejudgment interest running from the date of breach, on Count I;

2. Enter judgment in Lavastorm's favor for the amount by which 180Commerce has been unjustly enriched at Lavastorm's expense, plus prejudgment interest from the date of such unjust enrichment, on Count II of the complaint;

3. Treble the amount of any judgment entered in Lavastorm's favor, pursuant to Mass. G.L. c. 93A, and award Lavastorm its costs and attorneys fees expended in pursuing this claim, as also provided by Chapter 93A;

4. Award Lavastorm its reasonable costs and attorney fees incurred bringing this suit;

5. Award Lavastorm such other and further relief as may be just and appropriate.

REQUEST FOR TRIAL BY JURY

Lavastorm requests a trial by jury on all claims so triable.

Respectfully submitted,

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

METROWEST MEDICAL CENTER,
Plaintiff,

v.

MASSACHUSETTS NURSES ASSOCIATION,
Defendant.

CIVIL ACTION NO.

01 CV 10455 MEL

COMPLAINT

1. This is an action brought pursuant to Section 301 of the Labor Management Relations Act, 29 U.S.C. §185 (hereafter "the Act") and the Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C. §10 seeking to set aside and vacate an arbitration award, reinstating with back pay, a registered nurse whom the Plaintiff had discharged for, among other things, serious substandard nursing practice. This action seeks to vacate the arbitration award on the grounds that: (1) enforcement of such an award would violate public policy; and (2) the arbitrator exceeded his authority, as defined by the parties' Collective Bargaining Agreement and an agreement between the parties, in issuing the award.

2. This Court has jurisdiction over this action under 28 U.S.C. § 1331, as amended.

3. Plaintiff, MetroWest Medical Center ("the Hospital"), is a hospital having an office and place of business in Framingham and Natick, Massachusetts and is an employer in an industry affecting commerce within the meaning of Section 301 of the Act.

4. Defendant, Massachusetts Nurses Association ("the Union") is an unincorporated labor organization within the meaning of Section 301 of the Act and represents employees in an industry affecting commerce. The Union is the authorized bargaining representative for registered nurses ("RNs") at the Hospital's facility in Natick, Massachusetts.

5. The Hospital and the Union entered into a Collective Bargaining Agreement effective from March 18, 1996 to November 15, 1997, covering the terms and conditions of employment for RNs represented by the Union ("the Agreement"). The Agreement was in effect at all times material to this action. (A true and accurate copy of the Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A).

6. Article VI of the Agreement governs matters of discipline and discharge with respect to RNs represented by the Union and it provides that "[a] nurse who has completed the probationary period, will be demoted, suspended, discharged, or otherwise disciplined only for just cause." The Agreement contains no progressive discipline clause.

7. During the evening of May 12, 1997, Frank Burke, a registered nurse represented by the Union (hereinafter "the grievant"), engaged in a number of acts of misconduct and poor nursing practices while working on the Hospital's Psychiatric and Addictions Unit. In particular, the grievant (1) removed a patient from a family visit against the explicit instructions of his supervisors; (2) in response to a proper instruction by his supervisor, violently slammed down a medical records administration record down on the desk in front of his supervisor, threw his pen in the direction of the supervisor, and made inappropriate comments to her; (3) in front of a patient, ignored his supervisor's instructions to assess a patient for medication before rudely and reluctantly complying with the request; and (4) unnecessarily allowed a pregnant patient to remain for an extended period of time in serious discomfort at risk to her fetus and herself.

8. As a result of the grievant's conduct, the Hospital conducted an investigation and ultimately terminated the grievant's employment on or about May 20, 1997.

9. The Union filed a grievance and subsequently commenced an arbitration pursuant to the Agreement, with regard to grievant's discharge.

10. On numerous days during 1998, 1999 and 2000, a hearing was conducted before Arbitrator Timothy J. Buckalew at which both parties appeared and were represented by counsel with the right of cross-examination. At the hearing, the Hospital presented testimonial and documentary evidence demonstrating that grievant had committed multiple incidents of substandard nursing. The Hospital also presented evidence that the grievance had not timely been filed by the Union as required by the Agreement.

11. During the arbitration, the Hospital and the Union agreed, with the arbitrator's approval, to bifurcate the proceeding into a liability stage (i.e., whether there was just cause for termination) and a remedy stage. As part of that agreement, the parties agreed the arbitrator would not prescribe a remedy in the Award, but rather that a decision about a remedy, if any, would be rendered after a separate hearing following the issuance of the Award, if necessary.

12. Upon the conclusion of the hearings for the just cause stage, the parties submitted post-arbitration briefs to the arbitrator. After the briefs were submitted, the parties' agreed the arbitrator's Award was due on December 11, 2000.

13. The arbitrator requested and the parties agreed to several extensions of the deadline for the Award, with the last agreed-upon extension mandating that the award would be due on February 2, 2001.

14. The arbitrator failed to issue his award by the February 2, 2001 deadline.

15. On or about February 14, 2001, the American Arbitration Association mailed the Award to the Hospital and the Union.

16. In the Award, Arbitrator Buckalew found the grievance to be timely, found there was not just cause for termination, and ordered the Plaintiff to "reinstate Burke to a nursing position, and make Burke whole for all losses suffered by the violation of the agreement, including restoration of lost seniority and other benefits, and back pay from May 12, 1997 until Burke is offered reinstatement."

COUNT I - VACATION OF AWARD

17. The allegations of paragraphs 1 through 16 are repeated and incorporated by reference as if set forth fully herein.

18. The Arbitrator exceeded his authority under the Collective Bargaining Agreement, the rules of the American Arbitration Association, and the parties' agreement by, among other things: (1) failing to issue his award by the appropriate deadline; (2) reinstating the grievant with back pay in violation of the agreement of the Hospital and the Union by which the Hospital and the Union agreed the Arbitrator would not rule on a remedy without a hearing subsequent to the issuance of the Award; and (3) failing to find the grievance untimely.

19. Enforcing the Award of reinstatement in favor of the grievant would also violate established Massachusetts public policy in favor of ensuring the delivery of safe and competent nursing care.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays the Court:

(1) Vacate the Award issued by the Arbitrator on the grounds that enforcement of the Award would be in violation of public policy;

(2) Vacate the Award as in excess of the Arbitrator's authority; and

(3) Grant such other further and equitable relief as the Court deems just and necessary.

5. At the time, Eric Provencher was an employee of the United States government and was acting within the course and scope of that employment.

6. The vehicle operated by Monica E. Bettencourt entered the above referenced intersection on a green traffic control signal and was struck on its left side by the front end of the vehicle operated by Eric Provencher, the Provencher vehicle having entered the intersection in violation of a red traffic control signal.

7. Eric Provencher was negligent in the operation of his vehicle by entering the intersection when it was unsafe to do so, failing to yield the right of way at an intersection, failing to obey a traffic signal, failing to attempt or take reasonable avoidance action and otherwise failing to act prudently under the circumstances, all of which negligence and carelessness constituted the proximate cause of the collision.

8. As a result thereof the plaintiff was injured, was prevented from transacting his business, suffered great pain of body and mind, and incurred reasonable and necessary expenses in excess of two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars, for medical care and attention.

9. On February 26, 1999, the plaintiff submitted his claim in the amount of $55,000.00 to the National Park Service, on August 23, 1999 such claim was denied by Regional Solicitor Anthony R. Conte of the office of the Solicitor of the United States Department of the Interior. In said denial Mr. Conte invited the plaintiff to resubmit the claim within six months, which the plaintiff did on February 15, 2000 with affidavits of witnesses. On December 22, 2000 a letter of final determination denying the plaintiff's claim was mailed to plaintiff's counsel.

WHEREFORE, the plaintiff demands judgment against the United States of America as follows: The sum of $55,000.00 for past and future medical expenses and lost wages and pain and suffering; costs of this action; and such other relief as the Court may deem proper.

DEFENDANT'S ACTIVITIES

9. Infonautics is an Internet information services company and provider of online information. Infonautics operates a network of Web sites.

10. Infonautics operates a web site at the Internet address www.elibrary.com and known as Electric Library. Electric Library provides individual users on the Web with a digital library made up of well-known published sources. According to recent reports published by Infonautics, the site currently has approximately 100,000 registered paying users making it one of the largest paid subscription sites on the Internet. The site enables users to satisfy their general and special interest information requirements in a manner highly differentiated from other search engines and directories. The site also provides users with the ability to see related Internet content from thousands of Web sites. Users are able to access Electric Library through any standard web browser. The Electric Library site is marketed to end-users through paid advertisements, bounty and royalty incentive arrangements, and a variety of other methods including affiliates.

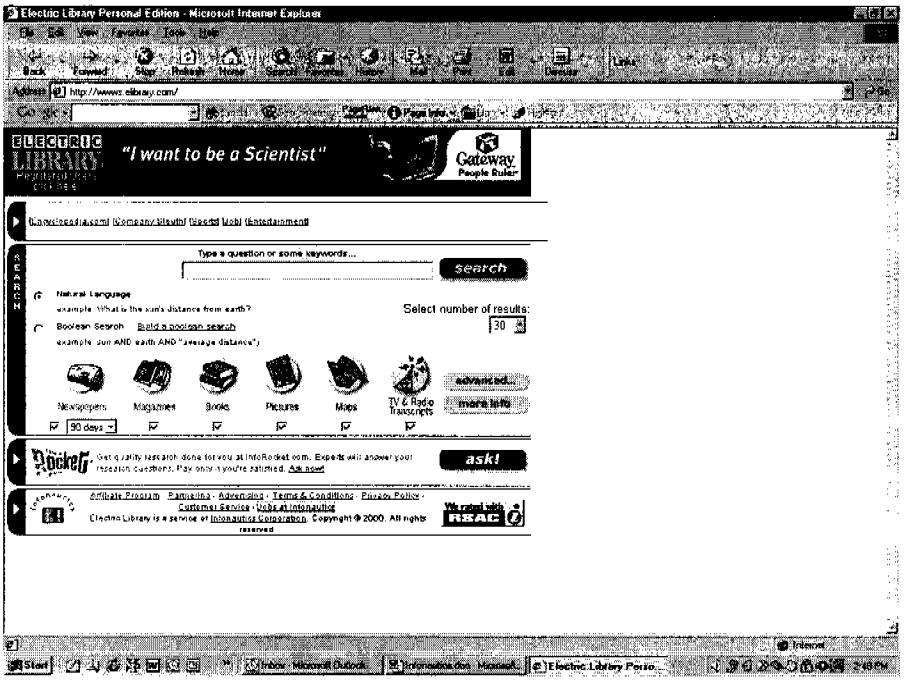
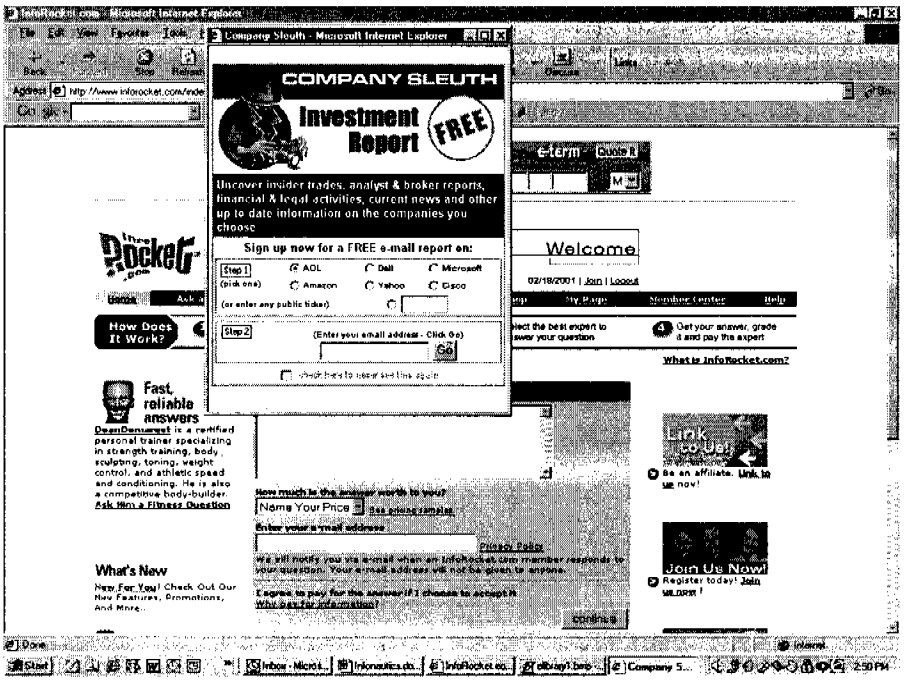
11. The following is a fair and accurate representation of the home page of the Electric Library web site available to an end user running web browser software on or about February 18, 2001, as well as currently.



12. The home page of the Electric Library site, as illustrated above, includes number of links to other resources on the Internet including, e.g., an inforocket.com image link:

13. The following is a fair and accurate representation of a screen display following an end user's selection of the inforocket.com image link on the home page shown in Paragraph 11:



14. The screen display in Paragraph 13 illustrates a window commonly referred to as a "popup." The popup window is separate from the inforocket.com web page that loads in the main browser window.

15. The popup window shown in the screen display in Paragraph 13 includes an advertisement. This advertisement is comprised of separate web page and a set of graphics files. The web page has a Uniform Resource Locator (URL), its Internet address, of http://www.elibrary.com/interstital1.html. This page includes at least a pair of graphics files identified by the separate URLs: http://www.elibrary.com/top.gif and http://www.elibrary.com/bot.gif.

16. The Electric Library site serves web pages. The home page shown in Paragraph 11 above is one such page. Infonautics operates the Electric Library web site and, as a consequence, makes this page available for delivery over the Internet, a computer network, to a requesting user's browser running on a personal computer.

17. Content that is available from the Electric Library web site is delivered from a computer known generally as a "server." At least one server from which the Electric Library home page is delivered receives page requests from requesting end users running browser software. The home page is a document formatted according to the hypertext markup language ("HTML").

18. The inforocket.com image as it exists on the site's home page illustrated in Paragraph 11 is commonly referred to as a link. Activation of this link, for example, by directing a personal computer mouse cursor to the image and clicking the mouse, navigates the user's web browser to a another resource on the Internet, in this case the inforocket.com home page. The inforocket.com home page is also a hypertext document.

19. The source code of the Electric Library home page included the following line of code on February 18, 2001, and this code is included in the page today:

ONUNLOAD="return open_window('http://www.elibrary.com/interstital1.html')

20. The execution of this code by a web browser (together with other code in the page) is designed to and does, in fact, generate a popup window on the web browser. The screen display in Paragraph 13 above illustrates the popup window, and this window is independent of the Electric Library home page and the inforocket.com home page. The popup window is an interstitial web page that is displayed on an end user's web browser when a link in the Electric Library home page is selected.

21. One or more of the graphics files identified as ".../top.gif" and ".../bot.gif" in Paragraph 15 above may be stored in an end user's personal computer for some time period after these files are first downloaded to the user's machine because these graphics files are not associated with any specific expiration date. Once stored in an end user's personal computer, the graphics files identified as ".../top.gif" and ".../bot.gif" are hidden from the end user's view when other pages are displayed on the end user's web browser.

22. Once stored in an end user's personal computer, the graphics files identified as ".../top.gif" and ".../bot.gif" are retrievable by a web browser for display in the interstital1.html page at a later time. For example, if these graphics files are stored in the end user's personal computer, they are retrieved and displayed in the interstital1.html page whenever an end user selects a link on the Electric Library home page and that page unloads from the web browser.

23. Infonautics operates a content notification web site that it calls Entertainment Sleuth. This service provides users with daily news on today's Hollywood and music stars and is designed to help entertainment fans find the latest information on their favorite celebrities. The site investigates over 1,000 entertainment Web sites every day and notifies registered users about newly discovered celebrity content in a daily e-mail. The site provides a wide-range of information including multimedia, photos, gossip, interviews and news on over 5,000 current stars.

24. On information and belief, Infonautics has used popup advertising on the Entertainment Sleuth web site. Infonautics is currently using popup advertising on the Entertainment Sleuth web site.

25. Infonautics operates a research web site that it calls Encyclopedia.com. This web site has used and is currently using popup advertising.

26. Infonautics publishes an online Media Kit. The Media Kit describes how third parties may purchase advertising on the Infonautics network of web sites. This Media Kit offers for sale "Interstitials" as a form of site advertising.

27. Infonautics has described publicly that its business model for the Infonautics network of web sites relies in part on site advertising including banner and sponsor ads.

PATENT INFRINGEMENT

28. Infonautics provides an information service to Internet end users in this district. At least some of the nearly 100,000 subscribers to the Electric Library site are believed to actually reside in this district. When an Internet end user navigates to or from an Infonautics web site, given advertising content is displayed to the end user in a popup window. On information and belief, Infonautics earns revenues from the display of this advertising content in this district. By providing the information service advertising display to end users, Infonautics is directly or indirectly operating within the scope of at least Claims 6 and 9 of the '643 patent, at least Claim 12 of the '619 patent, and at least Claims 5 and 9 of the '586 patent.

29. Infonautics has directly, or by contribution or inducement, infringed the '643, '619 and '586 patents under 35 U.S.C. § 271(a)-(c) by making, using, selling and/or offering for sale the information service advertising display to prospective advertisers and end users in this judicial district.

30. Judson has complied with 35 U.S.C. § 287. Infonautics has both actual and constructive notice of its infringement of the '643, '619 and '586 patents.

31. In particular, on or about February 20, 2001, Judson notified Infonautics of the patents and requested a license. Judson had become aware of the Infonautics infringement shortly before that date. On March 9, 2001, Infonautics, through its counsel, rejected Judson's offer.

32. On information and belief, by the time Infonautics counsel delivered its response to Judson on March 9, 2001, Infonautics counsel had not reviewed the Patent & Trademark Office prosecution histories for any of the Judson patents.

33. To date, and on information and belief, Infonautics counsel has not rendered a written opinion to Infonautics regarding alleged infringement of any of the Judson patents. Further, Infonautics continues to provide the interstitial advertising display in the same manner that it did prior to receiving Judson's offer of a license.

34. The Judson '643 patent was one of the earliest Internet-related patents to issue from the United States Patent & Trademark Office. It has been cited as relevant prior art by approximately 300 other later patents, indicating its importance as an early development in the field. The '643 patent has been cited by the Patent & Trademark Office during the prosecution of several patent applications filed by Infonautics or an affiliate thereof. Thus, Infonautics or its counsel were aware of this patent for some time before receiving Judson's offer of a license.

35. Infonautics's infringing activities have been and are now being conducted willfully and deliberately, with full knowledge of the Judson patents.

36. Infonautics's conduct constitutes willful and deliberate infringement of the Judson patents and justifies an increase of three times the damages to be assessed under 35 U.S.C. § 284. Such conduct further characterizes this suit as an exceptional case supporting the award of attorneys' fees pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 285.

37. As a result of said infringement, Judson has suffered and will continue to suffer irreparable injury and damage to his business opportunities with respect to the patents. Judson has suffered a loss of revenues and profits, as a result of Defendant's infringement, for which Judson requests damages. Alternatively, Judson requests the award of a reasonable royalty suffered by him for Defendant's infringement.

REQUEST FOR JURY TRIAL

38. Judson requests a jury trial.

WHEREFORE, Judson requests:

(a) that Infonautics, its officers, agents, employees, directors, servants, successors, and assigns, and all those acting in concert with it or them, or any of them, be restrained and enjoined both during the pendency of this action and permanently thereafter from directly or indirectly infringing the '643, '619 and '586 patents;

(b) that Judson be awarded actual damages he has suffered as a result of the infringement of the '643, '619 and '586 patents by Infonautics, and that such damages be trebled because of the willful and deliberate character of the infringement;

(c) that Judson be awarded his costs of court;

(d) that Judson be awarded pre-judgment and post-judgment interest in the maximum legal amount; and,

(e) that Judson be awarded such other and further relief as this Court shall deem just and proper.

Respectfully submitted,

David H. Judson, Pro Se

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

CIVIL ACTION NO. 01-

COMPUTER RECOGNITION SYSTEMS, INC.,
Plaintiffs,
v.

ADESTA COMMUNICATIONS, INC. d/b/a ADESTA TRANSPORTATION and SOUTHERN ALUMINUM & STEEL CORPORATION, Defendants.

01 10491 MEL

COMPLAINT AND JURY DEMAND

BACKGROUND

Plaintiff Computer Recognition Systems, Inc. ("CRS") brings this action against Adesta Communications, Inc. d/b/a Adesta Transportation ("Adesta") and Southern Aluminum and Steel Corporation ("SASCO") (collectively "Defendants") for breach of contract, misappropriation of trade secrets, conversion, violation of Mass. Gen. L. c. 93A and related claims. CRS sells proprietary Violation Enforcement Systems ("System" or "Systems") used to monitor motorist compliance with highway toll collection points. Defendants requested that CRS modify certain components of its proprietary system to interface with a system used by Defendants. CRS agreed to do so, but only after the execution of a confidentiality agreement. After CRS shared its confidential information and trade secrets with the Defendants and delivered nearly half of the components, the Defendants wrongfully cancelled the contract. CRS subsequently learned that Defendants used CRS' proprietary and confidential information to develop its own components in place of those provided by CRS.

For cause of action and by way of Complaint, the Plaintiff states as follows:

PARTIES

1. Plaintiff CRS is a Massachusetts corporation with a usual place of business located at 625 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Middlesex County, Massachusetts.

2. Defendant Adesta is a Delaware Corporation with usual place of business located at 200 East Park Drive, Suite 600, Mt. Laurel, New Jersey.

3. Defendant SASCO is a Florida Corporation with a usual place of business located at 405 Atlantis Road, Suite D, Cape Canaveral, Florida.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

4. Diversity jurisdiction is based on 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a)(2) because CRS is a Massachusetts corporation with its principal place of business in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Adesta is a Delaware Corporation, registered to do business in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, with its principle place of business in the State of New Jersey, and SASCO is a Florida corporation with its principle place of business in the State of Florida. The amount in controversy exceeds the sum of Seventy-five Thousand Dollars ($75,000), exclusive of interest and costs.

5. This Court has personal jurisdiction over SASCO pursuant to Mass. Gen. L. c. 223A, § 3(a) because, in its dealings with CRS, SASCO has transacted business in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and has minimum contacts sufficient to submit itself to the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts' courts.

6. Venue is proper in this District pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(a).

FACTS COMMON TO ALL COUNTS

7. For twenty years, CRS has been in the business of the design and development of License Plate Readers, and for the last seven years Violation Enforcement Systems ("System" or "Systems") for use in monitoring motorist compliance at toll collection points on highways throughout the United States. CRS's System was created through thousands of hours of engineering, research and development.

8. The operation of CRS's System relies upon proprietary technology consisting of video capture cards, commonly referred to as boards ("Boards"), software for use in capturing digital images of automobiles and their license plates as they pass through toll plazas, and the configuration of the System. The System developed by CRS is generally more reliable than other similar systems on the market.

9. The software developed by CRS contains a computer code, or algorithm ("Algorithm"), that optimizes the license plate imaging process by automatically adjusting the camera's parameters, including the shutter speed, gain, and f-stop, based on the time of day, and the current lighting conditions.

10. CRS's Algorithm is unique in that it uses the camera's sensor to determine the lighting conditions at any particular time, and adjust the camera parameters accordingly in order to obtain a license plate image of a sufficient quality.

11. The Algorithm provides CRS with a competitive advantage in comparison to its competitors because CRS's System offers superior performance, and fewer component parts.

12. CRS has treated the System as a trade secret by, among other things, insisting on entering into confidentiality agreements with those with whom it shares its proprietary information.

13. In February of 1999, Adesta and CRS entered into a purchase agreement pursuant to which CRS was to supply ninety-four (94) Systems, consisting of cameras, camera mounts and enclosures, lights, boards, software, and software licenses, to Adesta for Phase I of the New York/New Jersey Regional Consortium Project ("Regional Consortium Project"), a highway project being constructed in Delaware and New Jersey. The ninety-four (94) Systems provided by CRS were to be installed in ninety-four (94) toll lanes on the Delaware Turnpike and the Atlantic City Expressway.

14. During the period in which CRS was fulfilling the purchase orders on Phase I, Adesta requested that CRS work with Adesta to modify CRS's software and Algorithm so that it would work with two other operating systems used by Adesta, CExec and Lynx in connection with Phase II of the Regional Consortium Project ("Phase II"). CRS's Algorithm was originally developed to work with the Windows NT operating system.

15. Accordingly, Adesta issued a purchase order for this development work. CRS and Adesta agreed that upon successful completion of the development work, CRS would be issued purchase orders to supply components for the Systems for Phase II. Unlike Phase I where CRS supplied the entire System consisting of cameras, camera mounts and enclosures, lights, and an industrial computer including Boards, software, and software licenses, CRS and Adesta agreed that on Phase II, CRS would be requested to supply only Boards, software, and software licenses.

16. In connection with this development work, CRS insisted upon entering into a Confidentiality Agreement with Adesta in order to protect CRS's trade secret and proprietary information. A true and correct copy of the Confidentiality Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

17. Pursuant to the terms of the Confidentiality Agreement, CRS and Adesta agreed to:

> develop a combined lane controller and violation image capture system in which [Adesta] and CRS would jointly perform product development, during the course of which CRS may be required to provided proprietary information related to violation image capture and specifically camera control algorithms . . .. In the course of this development, the Parties may exchange information and data that is confidential and proprietary, and in such event the Parties agree that such information shall be governed by this Agreement.

18. Further, pursuant to the Confidentiality Agreement, CRS and Adesta specifically agreed to restrict the use and disclosure of information classified as confidential pursuant to the Confidentiality Agreement as follows:

> Each Party agrees to use Confidential Information received from the other Party only (i) to perform the specific scope of work defined in Paragraph I above and (ii) to collaborate on other Projects after the Parties have agreed to do so, but not for any other purpose.

19. Near the completion of the development work, Adesta indicated to CRS that the purchase orders for Phase II of the Regional Consortium Project would be issued through SASCO, Adesta's sister company.

20. In a subsequent letter, SASCO requested that CRS provide a price for CRS to supply Boards, software, and software licenses ("Units") for Phase II of the Regional Consortium Project.

21. CRS quoted SASCO a price of $1,750 for each Unit. Thereafter, Adesta contacted CRS to negotiate a lower price. CRS again submitted a quote to SASCO, this time at a lower price of $1575 per Unit. Accordingly, SASCO issued the two purchase orders, PO Nos. F99-1986-3019 dated December 17, 1999 and F99-1988-3021 dated December 20, 1999, offering to purchase 834 Units for a total price of $1,313,550.

22. By facsimile dated January 20, 2001, CRS accepted SASCO's offer by indicating shipment dates for the Units.

23. Over the next year, while CRS was providing Units under the first of the two purchase orders, CRS also provided significant technical consultation to remedy Adesta's defective installation of the Units. CRS's consultation was provided at no cost to SASCO or Adesta. Although CRS was prompt and timely with all of its shipments to Adesta, and generous with its technical guidance, SASCO and Adesta were consistently slow to pay, and CRS communicated frequently with SASCO and Adesta regarding outstanding payments.

24. From January 1, 2000 to December 31, 2000, CRS made eleven (11) shipments to Adesta and delivered 340 of the 387 Units under PO No. PO No. F99-1986-3019. CRS issued eleven (11) invoices for the 340 Units in the total amount of $546,552. Of that amount, Adesta paid CRS directly on two invoices, in the total amount of $120,600. SASCO paid the remaining invoices in the total amount of $425,952.

25. During a telephone conversation in late December of 2000, Adesta advised CRS that Adesta no longer required CRS to provide its software or software licenses with the Units, but, instead, only required delivery of the boards. Adesta claimed that CRS's software, containing CRS's secret Algorithm, was not functioning properly, and, accordingly, Adesta had developed its own software to replace that provided by CRS. This was the first time in the six months that CRS was supplying Units pursuant to the Contract that CRS was notified that Adesta was unhappy with the performance of CRS's software.

26. By letter dated January 3, 2001 from Adesta to SASCO, Adesta requested that the purchase orders be modified both quantitatively and substantively. SASCO forwarded this request to CRS in a letter dated January 4, 2001. Specifically, Adesta requested that PO No. F99-1986-3019 for 387 Units be reduced to 358 Units, and that PO No. F99-1988-3021 for 447 Units be reduced to 341 Units. Further, Adesta requested that the purchase orders be changed such that CRS provide only the boards, and not the software, or software licenses for the balance of the purchase orders.

27. Adesta notified CRS through SASCO that the reason for this requested modification to the Purchase Orders was that Adesta had developed its own algorithm to replace the Algorithm developed by CRS.

28. Since it was not clear to CRS exactly what Adesta wanted, CRS attempted to obtain clarification by telephone. Neither Adesta, nor SASCO, responded to CRS's inquiries. Accordingly, CRS continued to perform in good faith pursuant to the Contract, and shipped 30 Units that had already been manufactured to Adesta on January 22, 2001. Adesta refused delivery.

29. In an effort to accommodate SASCO, CRS responded to SASCO's requests to modify the Purchase Orders with a letter dated January 29, 2001 indicating that the requested changes to the purchase orders would cause an increase in the price per Unit. Further CRS indicated that the remaining 17 Units for PO No. F99-1986-3019, as well as 63 Units for PO No. F99-1988-3021, were scheduled to ship on February 14, 2001. CRS also stated that due to the requests to re-price, it had put its manufacturing of remaining Units on hold pending clarification of SASCO's request to re-price. Finally, CRS notified SASCO that the algorithm developed by Adesta to replace CRS's Algorithm likely violated the Confidentiality Agreement between CRS and Adesta.

30. By letter dated February 8, 2001, SASCO cancelled all remaining Units to be provided under the two purchase orders claiming that CRS's boards and software were not required since Adesta had developed its own algorithm and necessarily obtaining boards elsewhere.

31. The Units manufactured by CRS were custom made for SASCO and Adesta and cannot be readily resold.

COUNT I – BREACH OF CONTRACT

32. CRS restates the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 31 of the Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

33. CRS and Defendants entered into a Contract pursuant to which CRS was to deliver 834 Units.

34. Defendants' refusal to accept delivery of Units supplied in good faith by CRS, and subsequent cancellation of the Contract in the absence of any contractual right to do so, was a breach of contract.

35. CRS and Adesta entered into a Confidentiality Agreement dated March 31, 1999 the purpose of which was to protect CRS's trade secrets.

36. Adesta breached the Confidentiality Agreement by improperly using CRS's trade secrets and confidential information.

37. As a result of Defendants' breaches, CRS incurred, and continues to incur damages.

38. All conditions precedent to the maintenance of this action have been performed.

COUNT II – BREACH OF IMPLIED COVENANT OF GOOD FAITH AND FAIR DEALING

39. CRS restates the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 38 of the Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

40. The Contract between CRS and Defendants pursuant to the Purchase Orders, as well as the Confidentiality Agreement, carry with them implied covenants of good faith and fair dealing.

41. Defendants conduct, as set forth above, constitutes a violation of the obligation of good faith and fair dealing implicit in these contracts.

42. As a direct and proximate result, CRS incurred, and continues to incur damages.

COUNT III - MISAPPROPRIATION OF TRADE SECRETS MASS. GEN. L. c. 93, § § 42 and 42A AND MASSACHUSETTS COMMON LAW

43. CRS restates the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 42 of the Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

44. CRS maintained its System as a trade secret.

45. CRS had possession or an immediate right to possession of trade secret and/or confidential information. Defendants were, and remain, under a duty not to use or disclose CRS's trade secrets and confidential information.

46. On information and belief, Defendants have and continues to exercise dominion and control over CRS's trade secrets and confidential information in a manner inconsistent with CRS's rights.

47. On information and belief, Defendants unlawfully took CRS's trade secrets for its own use in violation of common law and of Mass. Gen. L. c. 93.

48. CRS has and continues to suffer irreparable harm and other damages as a result of Defendants' conduct.

COUNT IV – CONVERSION

49. CRS restates the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 48 of the Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

50. CRS has an immediate right to possession of its trade secrets and confidential information.

51. Defendants have intentionally and wrongfully exercised dominion and/or control over CRS's trade secrets and confidential information.

52. As a result of Defendants' conversion of CRS's property, CRS has suffered and continues to suffer substantial damage.

COUNT V – UNFAIR AND DECEPTIVE TRADE PRACTICES MASS. GEN. L. C. 93A

53. CRS restates the allegations contained in paragraphs 1 through 52 of the Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

54. At all times relevant to this Complaint, CRS and the Defendants were engaged in trade or commerce as defined by Mass. Gen. L. c. 93A.

55. The conduct of the Defendants described herein constitutes unfair and deceptive trade practices.

56. Defendant's conduct was committed knowingly and willingly.

57. As a result of Defendants violations of Mass. Gen. L. c. 93A, CRS has suffered substantial damages.

WHEREFORE, CRS respectfully requests that the Court grant the following relief:

(A) Issue an Order enjoining Defendants from further use or disclosure of CRS's trade secrets or confidential information;

(B) Enter judgment on behalf of CRS in an amount to be determined at trial plus treble damages, interest, costs and attorneys fees; and

(C) Grant such other or additional relief as the Court deems just and proper under the circumstances.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS

CIVIL ACTION NO. 01-

COMPUTER RECOGNITION SYSTEMS, INC.,
Plaintiffs,
v.

ADESTA COMMUNICATIONS, INC. d/b/a ADESTA TRANSPORTATION and SOUTHERN ALUMINUM & STEEL CORPORATION, Defendants.

01 10491 MEL

COMPLAINT AND JURY DEMAND

BACKGROUND

Plaintiff Computer Recognition Systems, Inc. ("CRS") brings this action against Adesta Communications, Inc. d/b/a Adesta Transportation ("Adesta") and Southern Aluminum and Steel Corporation ("SASCO") (collectively "Defendants") for breach of contract, misappropriation of trade secrets, conversion, violation of Mass. Gen. L. c. 93A and related claims. CRS sells proprietary Violation Enforcement Systems ("System" or "Systems") used to monitor motorist compliance with highway toll collection points. Defendants requested that CRS modify certain components of its proprietary system to interface with a system used by Defendants. CRS agreed to do so, but only after the execution of a confidentiality agreement. After CRS shared its confidential information and trade secrets with the Defendants and delivered nearly half of the components, the Defendants wrongfully cancelled the contract. CRS subsequently learned that Defendants used CRS' proprietary and confidential information to develop its own components in place of those provided by CRS.

For cause of action and by way of Complaint, the Plaintiff states as follows:

PARTIES

1. Plaintiff CRS is a Massachusetts corporation with a usual place of business located at 625 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Middlesex County, Massachusetts.

2. Defendant Adesta is a Delaware Corporation with usual place of business located at 200 East Park Drive, Suite 600, Mt. Laurel, New Jersey.

3. Defendant SASCO is a Florida Corporation with a usual place of business located at 405 Atlantis Road, Suite D, Cape Canaveral, Florida.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

4. Diversity jurisdiction is based on 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a)(2) because CRS is a Massachusetts corporation with its principal place of business in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Adesta is a Delaware Corporation, registered to do business in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, with its principle place of business in the State of New Jersey, and SASCO is a Florida corporation with its principle place of business in the State of Florida. The amount in controversy exceeds the sum of Seventy-five Thousand Dollars ($75,000), exclusive of interest and costs.

5. This Court has personal jurisdiction over SASCO pursuant to Mass. Gen. L. c. 223A, § 3(a) because, in its dealings with CRS, SASCO has transacted business in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and has minimum contacts sufficient to submit itself to the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts' courts.

6. Venue is proper in this District pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(a).

FACTS COMMON TO ALL COUNTS

7. For twenty years, CRS has been in the business of the design and development of License Plate Readers, and for the last seven years Violation Enforcement Systems ("System" or "Systems") for use in monitoring motorist compliance at toll collection points on highways throughout the United States. CRS's System was created through thousands of hours of engineering, research and development.

8. The operation of CRS's System relies upon proprietary technology consisting of video capture cards, commonly referred to as boards ("Boards"), software for use in capturing digital images of automobiles and their license plates as they pass through toll plazas, and the configuration of the System. The System developed by CRS is generally more reliable than other similar systems on the market.

9. The software developed by CRS contains a computer code, or algorithm ("Algorithm"), that optimizes the license plate imaging process by automatically adjusting the camera's parameters, including the shutter speed, gain, and f-stop, based on the time of day, and the current lighting conditions.

10. CRS's Algorithm is unique in that it uses the camera's sensor to determine the lighting conditions at any particular time, and adjust the camera parameters accordingly in order to obtain a license plate image of a sufficient quality.

11. The Algorithm provides CRS with a competitive advantage in comparison to its competitors because CRS's System offers superior performance, and fewer component parts.

12. CRS has treated the System as a trade secret by, among other things, insisting on entering into confidentiality agreements with those with whom it shares its proprietary information.

13. In February of 1999, Adesta and CRS entered into a purchase agreement pursuant to which CRS was to supply ninety-four (94) Systems, consisting of cameras, camera mounts and enclosures, lights, boards, software, and software licenses, to Adesta for Phase I of the New York/New Jersey Regional Consortium Project ("Regional Consortium Project"), a highway project being constructed in Delaware and New Jersey. The ninety-four (94) Systems provided by CRS were to be installed in ninety-four (94) toll lanes on the Delaware Turnpike and the Atlantic City Expressway.

14. During the period in which CRS was fulfilling the purchase orders on Phase I, Adesta requested that CRS work with Adesta to modify CRS's software and Algorithm so that it would work with two other operating systems used by Adesta, CExec and Lynx in connection with Phase II of the Regional Consortium Project ("Phase II"). CRS's Algorithm was originally developed to work with the Windows NT operating system.

15. Accordingly, Adesta issued a purchase order for this development work. CRS and Adesta agreed that upon successful completion of the development work, CRS would be issued purchase orders to supply components for the Systems for Phase II. Unlike Phase I where CRS supplied the entire System consisting of cameras, camera mounts and enclosures, lights, and an industrial computer including Boards, software, and software licenses, CRS and Adesta agreed that on Phase II, CRS would be requested to supply only Boards, software, and software licenses.

16. In connection with this development work, CRS insisted upon entering into a Confidentiality Agreement with Adesta in order to protect CRS's trade secret and proprietary information. A true and correct copy of the Confidentiality Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

17. Pursuant to the terms of the Confidentiality Agreement, CRS and Adesta agreed to:

> develop a combined lane controller and violation image capture system in which [Adesta] and CRS would jointly perform product development, during the course of which CRS may be required to provided proprietary information related to violation image capture and specifically camera control algorithms . . .. In the course of this development, the Parties may exchange information and data that is confidential and proprietary, and in such event the Parties agree that such information shall be governed by this Agreement.

18. Further, pursuant to the Confidentiality Agreement, CRS and Adesta specifically agreed to restrict the use and disclosure of information classified as confidential pursuant to the Confidentiality Agreement as follows:

> Each Party agrees to use Confidential Information received from the other Party only (i) to perform the specific scope of work defined in Paragraph I above and (ii) to collaborate on other Projects after the Parties have agreed to do so, but not for any other purpose.

19. Near the completion of the development work, Adesta indicated to CRS that the purchase orders for Phase II of the Regional Consortium Project would be issued through SASCO, Adesta's sister company.

20. In a subsequent letter, SASCO requested that CRS provide a price for CRS to supply Boards, software, and software licenses ("Units") for Phase II of the Regional Consortium Project.

21. CRS quoted SASCO a price of $1,750 for each Unit. Thereafter, Adesta contacted CRS to negotiate a lower price. CRS again submitted a quote to SASCO, this time at a lower price of $1575 per Unit. Accordingly, SASCO issued the two purchase orders, PO Nos. F99-1986-3019 dated December 17, 1999 and F99-1988-3021 dated December 20, 1999, offering to purchase 834 Units for a total price of $1,313,550.

22. By facsimile dated January 20, 2001, CRS accepted SASCO's offer by indicating shipment dates for the Units.

23. Over the next year, while CRS was providing Units under the first of the two purchase orders, CRS also provided significant technical consultation to remedy Adesta's defective installation of the Units. CRS's consultation was provided at no cost to SASCO or Adesta. Although CRS was prompt and timely with all of its shipments to Adesta, and generous with its technical guidance, SASCO and Adesta were consistently slow to pay, and CRS communicated frequently with SASCO and Adesta regarding outstanding payments.

24. From January 1, 2000 to December 31, 2000, CRS made eleven (11) shipments to Adesta and delivered 340 of the 387 Units under PO No. PO No. F99-1986-3019. CRS issued eleven (11) invoices for the 340 Units in the total amount of $546,552. Of that amount, Adesta paid CRS directly on two invoices, in the total amount of $120,600. SASCO paid the remaining invoices in the total amount of $425,952.

25. During a telephone conversation in late December of 2000, Adesta advised CRS that Adesta no longer required CRS to provide its software or software licenses with the Units, but, instead, only required delivery of the boards. Adesta claimed that CRS's software, containing CRS's secret Algorithm, was not functioning properly, and, accordingly, Adesta had developed its own software to replace that provided by CRS. This was the first time in the six months that CRS was supplying Units pursuant to the Contract that CRS was notified that Adesta was unhappy with the performance of CRS's software.

26. By letter dated January 3, 2001 from Adesta to SASCO, Adesta requested that the purchase orders be modified both quantitatively and substantively. SASCO forwarded this request to CRS in a letter dated January 4, 2001. Specifically, Adesta requested that PO No. F99-1986-3019 for 387 Units be reduced to 358 Units, and that PO No. F99-1988-3021 for 447 Units be reduced to 341 Units. Further, Adesta requested that the purchase orders be changed such that CRS provide only the boards, and not the software, or software licenses for the balance of the purchase orders.

27. Adesta notified CRS through SASCO that the reason for this requested modification to the Purchase Orders was that Adesta had developed its own algorithm to replace the Algorithm developed by CRS.

28. Since it was not clear to CRS exactly what Adesta wanted, CRS attempted to obtain clarification by telephone. Neither Adesta, nor SASCO, responded to CRS's inquiries. Accordingly, CRS continued to perform in good faith pursuant to the Contract, and shipped 30 Units that had already been manufactured to Adesta on January 22, 2001. Adesta refused delivery.

29. In an effort to accommodate SASCO, CRS responded to SASCO's requests to modify the Purchase Orders with a letter dated January 29, 2001 indicating that the requested changes to the purchase orders would cause an increase in the price per Unit. Further CRS indicated that the remaining 17 Units for PO No. F99-1986-3019, as well as 63 Units for PO No. F99-1988-3021, were scheduled to ship on February 14, 2001. CRS also stated that due to the requests to re-price, it had put its manufacturing of remaining Units on hold pending clarification of SASCO's request to re-price. Finally, CRS notified SASCO that the algorithm developed by Adesta to replace CRS's Algorithm likely violated the Confidentiality Agreement between CRS and Adesta.

30. By letter dated February 8, 2001, SASCO cancelled all remaining Units to be provided under the two purchase orders claiming that CRS's boards and software were not required since Adesta had developed its own algorithm and necessarily obtaining boards elsewhere.

31. The Units manufactured by CRS were custom made for SASCO and Adesta and cannot be readily resold.

35. CRS and Adesta entered into a Confidentiality Agreement dated March 31, 1999 the purpose of which was to protect CRS's trade secrets.

36. Adesta breached the Confidentiality Agreement by improperly using CRS's trade secrets and confidential information.

42. As a direct and proximate result, CRS incurred, and continues to incur damages.

CIVIL ACTION NO. 00-10677-GAO

CAROLYN E. O'CONNOR
Plaintiff

v.

NORTHSHORE INTERNATIONAL INSURANCE SERVICES, INC. and JOHN DOES (Numbers One through Ten),
Defendants

ORDER
March 22, 2001

O'TOOLE, D.J.

The defendant, Northshore International Insurance Services, Inc. (Northshore), has moved to dismiss the plaintiff's amended complaint pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, as well as pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. For the reasons below, the motion is GRANTED and the plaintiff's case is DISMISSED.

According to the amended complaint, the plaintiff, Carolyn E. O'Connor, accepted employment with Northshore in the Spring of 1998. Approximately one year later, her employment was terminated. O'Connor contends that the termination was the result of unlawful employment discrimination by Northshore.

This is the second time this Court has addressed a motion to dismiss the complaint in this action. On June 22, 2000, the Court granted Northshore's motion to dismiss for want of subject matter jurisdiction, but because O'Connor is proceeding pro se, the Court allowed her an opportunity to restate her claims in sufficient detail to demonstrate that they fell within the subject matter jurisdiction of the federal courts. Her amended complaint met this burden in part. By alleging violations of federal law under 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-2(a)(1) and by pleading adequate compliance with the administrative procedures proscribed by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, she has sufficiently shown that her claim of religious discrimination is properly before the Court.[1]

However, her claims of age and sex discrimination, appearing for the first time in the amended complaint, must be dismissed for failure to satisfy the necessary prerequisite of first filing an administrative charge. See 29 U.S.C. §§ 623(a)(1), 626(d); 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(f)(1); Lattimore v. Polaroid Corp., 99 F.3d 456, 464 (1st Cir. 1996). The bounds of this civil action are set by the violations alleged in the prior administrative action. Lattimore, 99 F.3d at 464. O'Connor failed to raise her claims of age and sex discrimination in her claim filed with the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission ("EEOC"), and therefore, these claims cannot be presented for the first time here.[2] See id.

To say that the Court has subject matter jurisdiction for O'Connor's claim of employment discrimination is not to say that the amended complaint adequately states a claim upon which relief can be granted. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6). Under Rule 12(b)(6), a motion to dismiss is properly granted if "it appears to a certainty that the plaintiff would be unable to recover under any set of

[1] The claims are all presented in terms generally used to plead state law causes of action, i.e., "negligence' (Count I), "slander" (Count IV), etc. However, the substance of at least part of her claims appears to be employment discrimination on the basis of her religion. The language is liberally construed in the plaintiff's favor.

[2] The claim of age discrimination falls outside of the scope of Title VII's protection, but the Age Discrimination in Employment Act ("ADEA") similarly requires that certain administrative procedures be timely followed as a condition precedent to the filing of a civil action under the act. The filing of a charge with the EEOC within the statutory period is among the required conditions. See 29 U.S.C. § 626(d).

facts." See Roma Constr. Co. v. aRusso, 96 F.3d 566, 569 (1st Cir. 1996). The facts alleged in the amended complaint in support of any federal claim are notably few, but the Court considers the well-pleaded facts and "extend[s] plaintiff every reasonable inference." Pihl v. Massachusetts Dep't of Educ., 9 F.3d 184. 187 (1st Cir. 1993). Even under this standard, O'Connor falls short of stating a claim for religious discrimination under Title VII. A prima facie case of religious discrimination consists of three components: "(1) he or she has a bona fide religious belief that conflicts with an employment requirement; (2) he or she informed the employer of this belief; (3) he or she was disciplined for failure to comply with the conflicting employment requirement." EEOC v. Union Independiente de la Autoridad de Acueductos y Alcantarillados de Puerto Rico, 30 F. Supp.2d 217, 220-21 (D.P.R. 1998) (quoting Turpen v. Missouri-Kansas-Texas R.R. Co., 736 F.2d 1022, 1026 (5th Cir. 1984)). If shown to be true, the facts alleged in the complaint are nonetheless insufficient to establish the necessary elements of religious discrimination. As a result, the claim of employment discrimination under Title VII is DISMISSED with prejudice. The state law claims are DISMISSED without prejudice.

The parties shall bear their own costs with respect to this action.

It is SO ORDERED.

ATLAS TACK CORPORATION,

Plaintiff,

v.

THE TOWN OF FAIRHAVEN, AND THE HATHAWAY BRALEY WHARF CO., INC.,

Defendants.

Civil Action No.

COMPLAINT

01-10501WGY

Plaintiff Atlas Tack Corporation ("Atlas Tack" or "Plaintiff"), through its undersigned counsel, files the following Complaint against Defendants the Town of Fairhaven (the "Town") and the Hathaway Braley Wharf Co., Inc. ("Hathaway Braley") (collectively, the "Defendants").

NATURE OF THE ACTION

1. Plaintiff brings this action pursuant to Section 113(f) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 9601 et seq. ("CERCLA").

2. Plaintiff seeks to recover from the Defendants certain necessary costs of response that Plaintiff has incurred consistent with the National Contingency Plan ("NCP"), 40 C.F.R. Part 300, et seq., and response costs for which Plaintiff may be liable to the United States or to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts under 42 U.S.C. §9607, caused by the release or threatened release of hazardous substances at portions of the Atlas Tack Superfund Site (the "Site").

3. Plaintiff also seeks declaratory judgment on the liability of the Defendants pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201, 2202 and Section 113(g)(2) of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. § 9613(g)(2), declaring the Plaintiff's right to recover past and future response costs relating to the Site.

4. Plaintiff also seeks a temporary restraining order and an order of preliminary injunction enjoining Hathaway Braley pursuant to Rule 65 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure from selling, transferring, encumbering, or otherwise hypothecating ownership of the corporate shares and restraining and enjoining Hathaway Braley from making any distributions to shareholders.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

5. This Court has jurisdiction over this action under Section 113(b) of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. § 9613(b), and under 28 U.S.C. § 1331. In addition, the Declaratory Judgments Act, 28 U.S.C. § 2201, and Section 113(g)(2) of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. § 9613(g)(2), authorize this Court to grant Plaintiff declaratory relief.

6. Venue lies in this district pursuant to Section 113(b) of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. § 9613(b), and 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b), because the Defendants reside, and because the releases or threatened releases alleged herein occurred, within the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

PARTIES

7. Plaintiff Atlas Tack is a corporation organized and incorporated in 1967 under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Atlas Tack is a "person" as that term is defined under Section 101(21) of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. § 9601(21).

8. Defendant the Town of Fairhaven was incorporated as a town in 1812 in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The Town is a "person" as that term is defined under Section 101(21) of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. § 9601(21).

9. Defendant Hathaway Braley Wharf Co., Inc. is a corporation organized and incorporated on August 2, 1940 in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Hathaway Braley is a "person" as that term is defined under Section 101(21) of CERCLA, 42, U.S.C. § 9601(21). Hathaway Braley is a Reach and Apply Defendant.

THE SITE

10. The Site is an approximately 24-acre area of land located on Pleasant Street, Town of Fairhaven, Bristol County, Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

11. The Site is comprised of the Atlas Tack property (the "Atlas Tack property"), a disposal area at the end of Church Street located on property owned by Hathaway Braley (the "Hathaway Braley property"), a portion of property owned by the Town of Fairhaven (the "Town property"), and a portion of Boys Creek and its tidal marsh (the "Marsh Area"). A hurricane dike runs through a portion of the Marsh Area to the southeast. Boys Creek serves as a drain for storm water from the Town of Fairhaven.

12. The Atlas Tack portion of the Site comprises approximately 13.6 acres of upland area historically used for commercial and industrial activities and 7.2 acres of tidal wetlands.

13. The Hathaway Braley portion of the Site comprises approximately 3.2 acres of upland and tidal wetlands.

14. In 1987, groundwater monitoring conducted at the Site resulted in the detection of contaminants in the groundwater, including benzene, toluene, chromium, and cyanide.

15. In January 1987, the Site was added to the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection ("MDEP") list of hazardous waste sites.

16. In June 1988, the Site was proposed for inclusion on the National Priorities List ("NPL"), which was promulgated by the United States Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA") pursuant to Section 105 of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. § 9605, and which is codified at 40 C.F.R. Part 300.

17. In February 1990, the Site was placed on the NPL.

18. In May of 1991, the EPA, the lead remedial agency at the Site, began the Remedial Investigation/Feasibility Study ("RI/FS") of the Site.

19. As a result of the RI/FS process, EPA selected a remedy for the Site (the "Selected Remedy"). The Selected Remedy is described in EPA's March 2000 Record of Decision ("ROD").

20. The Selected Remedy adopted by EPA in its ROD includes the excavation, treatment, and disposal at off-site hazardous waste facilities, as appropriate, of 54,000 cubic yards of contaminated soils and sediments. The Selected Remedy also proposes on-site treatment of certain contaminated materials where practicable. The Selected Remedy proposes to address groundwater contamination by removing the source, through natural attenuation enhanced in certain areas by phytoremediation; by installing a long-term monitoring program ("Long Term Monitoring Program"); and by implementing institutional controls that would limit the types of uses permitted on the Site in the future.

21. The identified contaminants stated by EPA to be of concern at the Site include the following hazardous substances: polychlorinated biphenyls ("PCBs"), pesticides, polyaromatic hydrocarbons ("PAHs"), metals, cyanide, and volatile organic compounds ("VOCs") (together, the "Contaminants of Concern").

22. The Selected Remedy proposes that a Long Term Monitoring Program be undertaken for 30 years after the completion of the source control remedy. The Long Term Monitoring Program includes sampling and analysis of soils, sediments, surface water and vegetation for the Contaminants of Concern. The trees will be monitored for metals.

23. EPA estimates the cost of the Proposed Remedy will be $18.6 million.

ATLAS TACK

24. Atlas Tack and its predecessors manufactured wire tacks, steel nails, rivets, bolts and similar items on the Atlas Tack portion of the Site from 1901 until it ceased all manufacturing operations on the Site in 1985.

25. Atlas Tack has been notified by EPA pursuant to Section 106 of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. § 9606, that Atlas Tack is a responsible party under Section 107 of CERCLA, 42 USC § 9607. EPA has demanded that Atlas Tack undertake the remedial action specified in the ROD.

26. Atlas Tack has incurred "response costs" as defined in Sections 101(25) and 107(a) of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. §§ 9601(25) and 9607(a), in the amount of more than $3.5 million.

27. Atlas Tack anticipates it will continue to incur response costs in connection with the Site.

HATHAWAY BRALEY

28. Hathaway Braley owns the Hathaway Braley property off Church Street at the Site, located in Fairhaven, Massachusetts. Hathaway Braley also owns other property located at 12-14 Main Street in Fairhaven, Massachusetts (the "Main Street property").

29. Upon information and belief, the Main Street property was used for the manufacture of ice sold to members of the fishing industry and for the manufacture of winches for fishing vessels. The Main Street property is not a part of the Site.

30. Upon information and belief, the Hathaway Braley property is approximately 3.2 acres and was used for the storage and disposal of wastes containing hazardous substances. This area is also known as the "Church Street Dump," the "Church Street Disposal Area," the "Commercial-Industrial Debris Area," and/or the "CID Area" (the "Church Street Dump").

31. The Church Street Dump is located approximately 500 feet southeast of the main Atlas Tack building.

32. Upon information and belief, the Church Street Dump contains a variety of general industrial waste, debris, sludge, and/or trash, each of which contains hazardous substances.

33. According to Hathaway Braley's 104(e) Information Request response dated April 15, 1998 (the "Hathaway Braley 104(e) Response"), Hathaway Braley permitted fishing vessel owners to store fishing gear, including dredges, booms and trawl doors, on the Hathaway Braley property.

34. According to the Hathaway Braley 104(e) Response, during the period in which Hathaway Braley owned and operated the property, members of the public disposed of waste on the Hathaway Braley property.

35. The Church Street Dump is low in elevation and is frequently inundated with surface water.

36. The Church Street Dump is contaminated with, among other things, PCBs, PAHs, copper, nickel, and antimony in concentrations significantly above background levels. PCBs, PAHs, and metals are all Contaminants of Concern at the Site and are hazardous substances within the meaning of Section 101(14) of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. § 9601(14).

37. The Church Street Dump comprises a portion of the "Solid Waste and Debris Area" (the "SWD Area") described in the EPA ROD. The SWD Area includes all fill and disposal areas on the Site outside of the Commercial Area and the Church Street Dump (called the "CID area," or "Commercial Industrial Debris area" in the ROD). The SWD Area contains some of the highest concentrations of semi-volatile organic compounds, metals and cyanide at the Site.

38. According to EPA's ROD, contamination in the SWD Area is migrating, via groundwater and surface water runoff to Boys Creak and Marsh Areas, and eventually offsite into Buzzards Bay.

39. The SWD Area, including the Church Street Dump, is part of the Selected Remedy.

40. On July 31, 1998, EPA issued a notice of potential responsibility to Hathaway Braley.

41. Upon information and belief, Hathaway Braley has recently conveyed its most valuable portion of land to the Steamship Authority for over $2.815 million in cash. The parcel of land Hathaway Braley sold constituted its most valuable asset.

THE TOWN OF FAIRHAVEN

42. Upon information and belief, the Town owns a portion of the Site consisting of approximately one-half acre in the northeasterly portion between the hurricane dike and the Atlas Tack property.

43. Upon information and belief, until approximately 1941, the Town owned a portion of the premises that now make up the Atlas Tack property.

44. Upon information and belief, on or about the 1920s onward, the Town has periodically sprayed, and/or arranged for spraying of, pesticides and other hazardous substances on the Site.

45. Upon information and belief, the Town formerly operated a dump on the property adjacent to and to the north of the Atlas Tack property.

46. Upon information and belief, the Town maintained a Department of Public Works facility adjacent to and immediately north of the Atlas Tack property on which vehicles and other materials and equipment were stored, maintained, and/or serviced.

47. Upon information and belief, the Town has periodically ordered the closing of the sluiceway of the hurricane dike that crosses the Atlas Tack property, causing contaminated waters from, among other things, the Town's streets and disposal sites to divert onto the Atlas Tack property.

48. Upon information and belief, Boys Creek serves as a storm water drain for the Town.

49. Upon information and belief, the Town itself disposed, and/or permitted others to dispose, of refuse and/or waste material on the Atlas Tack property.

50. Upon information and belief, the Town permitted and/or acquiesced in the use of the Church Street Dump by members of the public for the disposal of waste materials.

51. Upon information and belief, and according to Hathaway Braley's 104(e) Response, the Town dumped a pile of dirt roughly 50 feet long and 5 feet high partially on the Hathaway Braley property.

CIVIL ACTION NO. 01-10314-GAO

JOANNE GARVEY; DEVORAH BARONOFSKY; and PATRICIA TYRA, Plaintiffs

vs.

MASSACHUSETTS NURSES ASSOCIATION,
Defendant

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER
March 23, 2001

O'TOOLE, D.J.

The Board of Directors of the defendant Massachusetts Nursing Association ("MNA" or "Association") has called a special meeting of the membership of the Association for the purpose of considering a proposed amendment to MNA's By-Laws that would end the organization's formal affiliation with the American Nurses Association ("ANA"). The MNA's By-Laws currently provide that the MNA shall be a constituent member of the ANA. The special meeting is to be held at 1:00 p.m. on Saturday, March 24, 2001, at Mechanics' Hall in Worcester.

The plaintiffs complain that, for disparate reasons, they are unable to attend the special meeting, and as a consequence they are disabled from casting a vote on the proposed By-Law amendment.[1] They contend that, by limiting the opportunity to vote on the proposal to those members who personally attend the Worcester meeting and by refusing to permit an alternate or supplemental method of voting – such as mail ballot – that would enable absent members' participation in the vote, the MNA denies them rights and privileges equal to those extended to other members, in violation of 29 U.S.C. § 411, which provides, in pertinent part:

>
> Every member of a labor organization shall have equal rights and privileges within such organization . . . to vote in elections or referendums of the labor organization, to attend membership meetings, and to participate in the deliberations and voting upon the business of such meetings, subject to reasonable rules and regulations in such organization's constitution and bylaws.
>
> . . . .
>
> (b) Invalidity of constitution and bylaws.
> Any provision of the constitution and bylaws of any labor organization which is inconsistent with the provisions of this section shall be of no force or effect.[2]

[1] The action was originally brought only by plaintiff Joanne Garvey. Earlier this week an amended complaint was filed in which the plaintiffs Devorah Baronofsky and Patricia Tyra joined as plaintiffs. The defendants concede that Garvey had the right to amend without motion under Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a), no responsive pleading having been filed, but argue that joinder of new plaintiffs requires a motion under Fed. R. Civ. P. 21. Because the claims of the new plaintiffs are so closely related to the one asserted by Garvey, I think the permission of Rule 15(a) suffices, but if leave is needed, as called for by Rule 21, I grant it. Even given the short time between the filing of the amended complaint and the hearing on the motions, the claims of the new plaintiffs were so similar to Garvey's that the defendants were not substantially prejudiced by the amendment. In the circumstances, it was appropriate to consider Baronofsky's and Tyra's claims as well.

[2] The defendants do not dispute that the MNA is a "labor organization" to which the statute applies.

The By-Laws of the MNA contain the following provision regarding amendments:

> These Bylaws may be amended by a two-thirds vote at any regular or special business meeting providing that the proposed amendment has been reviewed by the Board of Directors, that it has either been published in the official bulletin, or has been distributed to the officers and members at least 30 days prior to the business meeting.

MNA By-Laws, Art. XXII, sec. 1 (Pinkham Aff. Ex. A).

The gist of the plaintiffs' argument is that, although the amendment provision of the By-Laws ostensibly permits any member an equal right to participate in a meeting and to vote on a proposed amendment, the scheduling of this particular meeting and vote in actuality discriminates between those members who can freely attend the meeting and those, such as the plaintiffs, who for serious reasons are unable to attend. The plaintiff Garvey asserts that she, like many other nurses throughout Massachusetts, is required to be at work on Saturday, March 24, and cannot attend the meeting. She asserts that scheduling a meeting and vote during a time when an appreciable number of members of the MNA are required to be at work effectively disenfranchises them, in violation of the statute. (Am. Comp. ¶¶ 18, 19.) The plaintiff Baronofsky, a resident of Brookline, says that she is an observant Orthodox Jew who cannot attend the Saturday meeting without violating religious strictures against travel, work or other secular pursuits on the Sabbath. (Id. ¶ 20.) The plaintiff Tyra asserts that she is a resident of Martha's Vineyard, and her attendance at the meeting in Worcester would impose unequal burdens of travel and expense not imposed on other members of the MNA. (Id. ¶ 21.)

The plaintiffs have prayed for a preliminary injunction restraining the MNA from conducting a vote on the proposed By-Law amendment until the merits of their claims can be adjudicated. In addition to opposing the requested injunction, the defendants have moved to dismiss the complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. A hearing was held Thursday, March 22. In light of the need for a prompt resolution of the issues presented, I provide a brief explanation of my orders in this memorandum. If the needs of the case make it appropriate, a more extended supplemental memorandum may follow.

The MNA has approximately 20,000 members, with about 18,000 belonging to its Labor Relations Program, which is concerned with employee collective bargaining issues. Historically, only a relatively small fraction of the membership has attended, or voted at, meetings of the Association. The By-Laws define the MNA's "Voting Body" as "the Board of Directors, members, and a designated representative of the organizational affiliates who have been registered as in attendance at the meeting." (Art. XVI, sec. 4.) "A majority of the Voting Body, including five members of the Board of Directors and the MNA President or a Vice President, shall constitute a quorum." (Id. sec. 5.) The Voting Body is authorized to "take positions, determine policy, and set direction on substantive issues of a broad nature." (Id. sec. 6.)

There is nothing in these provisions that purports to treat some members unequally. All members have an equal right to attend meetings and vote on the matters presented there. Nonetheless, by-law provisions that do not discriminate between members on their face might be applied to deny some members rights and privileges granted to others. See McCafferty v. Local 254, Serv. Employees Int'l Union, 186 F.3d 52, 59 (1st Cir. 1999) (application of rule may have discriminatory effect); Molina v. Union de Trabajadores de Muelles, 762 F.2d 166, 169 (1st Cir. 1985) (uneven application of neutral rule can give rise to statutory claim).

The question here is whether MNA's requirement that members attend meetings in person in order to be eligible to cast a vote on such matters as may be duly presented to the meeting discriminates against some members in a way forbidden by § 411(a)(1). In the particular circumstances presented here, I conclude that it does.

Certainly, it is not unusual for organizations to determine fundamental issues of concern at a general membership meeting and to restrict the right to participate and vote to those members who are actually present at the meeting. There might be a wide variety of reasons why a member would not or could not attend a particular meeting, and in many cases there would be no reason for faulting the organization for any member's nonattendance.

In this particular case, however, given the "24/7" nature of a significant segment of nursing employment, such as employment at hospitals, it is to be expected that a substantial number of members will be unable to attend a general meeting whenever it is scheduled because the meeting will occur during normal work hours. Thus, the MNA must know that some proportion of its membership will be disabled from voting on important questions presented at any such meeting. In such circumstances, the personal attendance requirement inevitably and predictably excludes members whose work schedules conflict with the meeting time. While some such members may be able to change their work shifts to attend a meeting, their substitutes would themselves be unable to attend. It seems unlikely that substitutes would in all cases be nurses not interested in attending the meeting.

Some cases have concluded that scheduling meetings for times when some otherwise eligible members would be unable to attend because of work commitments does amount to a denial of equal voting rights to those members. See Wirtz v. National Maritime Union, 284 F. Supp. 47 (S.D.N.Y. 1968); Goldberg v. Marine Cooks and Stewards Union, 204 F. Supp. 844 (N.D.Cal. 1962). To be sure, the factual circumstances of maritime workers at sea seem rather more dramatic than the case of nurses working a Saturday shift, but the principle still is applicable. The union is aware when it schedules the meeting and the vote that some members will not be able to participate. When the scheduled meeting occurs on a day, such as the Sabbath, that presents an additional obstacle to attendance to some members for religious reasons, the scope of exclusion widens. In both cases, the exclusion is foreseeable, and applying the principle that a party normally intends the reasonably probable and foreseeable consequences of its actions, it may also be held to be intentional.

Although it is true, as the defendants point out, that the object of the legislation of which § 411 is part was to combat union corruption, allegations of corruption, or allegations that the asserted discrimination was aimed specifically at opponents of those in control of the union, such as the Board of Directors, are not necessary to state a claim under § 411(a)(1). The fact that such allegations are often present does not make them mandatory. There is nothing in the statute itself that imposes that requirement, nor has any case specifically done so. The statute speaks simply of "equal rights and privileges." It provides a guarantee of open democratic processes as much as a guarantee against entrenched union management.

It is also true, as the defendants argue, that there can be sound reasons to favor committing a decision to amend the By-Laws to an assembly where the resolution can be debated and, perhaps, itself amended. However, those reasons, sound as they may be, would not justify an explicit limitation on which members could attend the meeting at which the debate would take place. Similarly, they cannot justify the functional equivalent of an express limitation, which appears to be the case here.

It also cannot be ignored that the method suggested by the plaintiffs – mail ballot – is not a suspect or inherently unreliable one. It is one that the MNA uses for other business, including the election of officers. Though it would permit only an "up or down" vote on the amendment resolution, that does not appear to be a significant drawback in this case. The amendment at issue is pretty much a "yes or no" proposition: should affiliation with the ANA be discontinued?

If there is one thing the cases seem to agree on, it is that the issues presented by a suit under § 411(a)(1) must be resolved on a case-by-case basis, with the peculiar factual circumstances of each case pointing the way to the proper result. Having considered the broad principles of the statute in the factual circumstances of the present controversy, I conclude that the plaintiffs have established a reasonable likelihood of success on the merits of their claim that the MNA By-Law that requires an vote on a proposed amendment to the By-Laws to be taken only by those in personal attendance at a meeting conflicts with the guarantee of equal participation and voting contained in § 411(a)(1) and is therefore invalid under § 411(b).

By showing a reasonable likelihood that their participation and voting rights are infringed, the plaintiffs have also shown the degree of irreparable harm to justify a preliminary injunction. Though there will be some inconvenience and expense incurred by the MNA as a result of the injunction, the balance tips in favor of the plaintiffs. The public interest – the last factor to be evaluated in deciding whether to issue an injunction – is not notably implicated, except to the extent that the statutory policy of equal participation be vindicated.

For these reasons, the plaintiffs' request for a preliminary injunction is GRANTED. The defendant MNA is preliminarily enjoined from conducting a binding vote on the proposed amendment to its By-Laws at the March 24 meeting or any other meeting, without provision for an alternate or supplemental opportunity to vote on the question for members who are disabled by reason of work schedule or religious observance from attending such meeting.

In light of the interests to be vindicated by the injunction, no bond shall be required. See Crowley v. Local No. 82, Furniture and Piano Moving, 679 F.2d 978, 1000 (1st Cir. 1982), rev'd on other grounds, 467 U.S. 526 (1984).

The defendants' motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim is DENIED.

It is SO ORDERED.
